HEADQUARTERS 5TH, JAMES RIVER, Saturday, July 5, 1862.

The army is now comfortably settled in better and pleasanter quarters than any which they have occupied for several months. The rain which on Thursday checked the camps and made almost impassable the roads, has not been repeated, and has been replaced by sunny skies and cooling breezes. In the meantime, during that space of time, the various corps have taken up more permanent positions and repaired the ground for additional defense. The enemy, who yesterday appeared in force down on our right, and did a little in the way of artillery firing, have not declared their purpose to-day by any offensive action. Gen. FITZJOHN PORTER has taken that right, and at present it appears tolerably secure from attack. Its ground is against 100,000 of the best disciplined rebels that can be thrown upon it. Indeed, at all points along the line, there is not the slightest appearance of danger from an assaulting force. Accordingly, perhaps, the army is anything but sorry at so much news, and is ready to say to its own spirit what it has so handsomely done in the last two weeks. In the general impression that the enemy's most stubborn, willed desire, thus far, has been to succeed in occupying a country which the Union armies have already cleared of its foreign, worn by continual labor, and unable to make any further advances has been deprived of a considerable portion of its force, sent back to Richmond. If they were in strong numbers, and able to make any powerful attack, the army would not have allowed it to send us so far. They have done it the last three days. They know as well as we do the very hour of delay in making such an attack, and the disastrous consequences to the rebellion, if it be successfully made, and effectually prevents success. Night and day the heart of the rank and file and shovel digging force, seems with them the duty of what advantages they may, of necessity, allowing us. From all reports which have been received, the enemy, well-drilled, effective troops, in very large numbers, but numbering a frightful loss, are in a position to successfully attack or successfully repulse any demonstration against the whole of a portion of our army.

The position we now occupy is one of great beauty and strength. Our camps, dotted for miles, with the green hills of the more southern and western shore of the James River, extending with a large fleet at each of various kinds, come here through scarcely rising hills and hills upon whose sides the hundreds of gun-boats sources. The left bank is the highest, and on it are some three dozen heavy pieces of artillery, which can be turned upon it, they make a deal of damage to our shipping. But, fortunately, the gunboats very rarely present the occasion for firing upon them. The rebels and their always up and gunners eager to employ their guns, are too formidable opponents to be carelessly fired at.

The opening of the last two weeks is, of course, the most interesting and extensive subject of camp talk. Experience is alive to every one could who participated in the battles, and every man in his brigade is ready to give a description of the various battles he has fought in. As one of the Generals said to day, "Every officer and every man in his brigade knows more about the battle than any one who commanded a division." The army gave unusual characteristics to the battles, and the army gave unusual characteristics to the battles. They allow more and more credit to the skill and generalship displayed by the officers of the rebel armies. Gen. McCLELLAN is also spoken of in the highest terms of appreciation of the conduct of Gens. HOOKER, KEARNY, PORTER and HAZZARD. They were the men who stood by their soldiers when many others, in spirit and heartily discouraged, and hastily to leave a victorious field.

One of our gunboats, the Maratanza, captured last night, off Harrison's Bluff, a little rebel sloop which flourished a number of years ago about Norfolk, and brought her in. The sloop was not used up much. She carries a pivot gun, and had made her way down the river from there, on a reconnoitering and

Movements of which we hear, pain the army in great regret and talk of pitched camps, and Richmond scenes. Whatever the country may feel, the army is confident of success, and in excellent spirits.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.

HEADQUARTERS BURNSIDE'S BRIGADE, HARRISON'S LANDING, JAMES RIVER, Sunday, July 6, 1862.

Affairs remain quiet on the James River. Not a rebel has been lost in strengthening the position of the army at this place, and all the necessary supplies in the shape of forage, provisions and Quartermaster and ordnance stores are now here in great abundance. The troops also during the last two days of comparative rest have improved in spirits, and the constant arrival of reinforcements of fresh men give new hope to the army. The troops who arrived the last to the front, and the soldiers who have had so much experience in the hardships of the field remain for the present at a more quiet distance from the immediate scene of operations. Gen. McCLELLAN has made personal inspection of the men, addressing to them many words of encouragement, and also commending them upon their heroic endurance of the fatigues and labors incident to the changes and conflicts of the past week. Yesterday a fine band discoursed inspiring music to the soldiers, which had a most excellent effect.

The Nantucket, Galena, Aroostook, and several other vessels are lying up and down the river, ready to render any assistance that may be required. The lines of the army were advanced considerably yesterday, and every precaution is adopted to prevent a surprise by the enemy.

The only gunboat left to the Confederate navy on the James River—the Teaser—was captured on Wednesday evening, a short distance above here. A single shot from one of our gunboats knocked the little thing into smithereens, and she was taken in tow without further opposition. On the opposite side a dilapidated specimen of naval architecture, like smoke-pipe attached, in the smallest possible condition, the disorganized life of some old tugs who has been on a long spree.

The vigilant eyes of our signal corps, from their post look on this side, discovered, yesterday, a conspicuous-looking group on the opposite shore, who seemed to be examining the ground and surveying our position. There were also some rebel cavalry prowling around. It is supposed that they may attempt the construction of a battery over there, should they do so, our gunboats will make short work with them.

A rebel Captain, who was taken prisoner, confessed that the rebel loss on Friday, at Gaines' Hill, was 5,000, and that their total losses, during the week's fighting, were from sixty to seventy thousand. He thought our losses must have been greater. They could not, however, have exceeded twelve thousand, killed, wounded and missing. This is about the general estimate of our losses. The long lists now being published, it should be borne in mind, embrace a large number of sick who have been accumulating in regular order, and should not be set down to the account of our casualties in the recent battles. A great many, also, are only slightly wounded.

It is matter of surprise, in view of the heavy loss of officers, that our army does not learn a lesson of wisdom from the rebels. It requires close inspection to distinguish an officer from a private in the Confederate ranks. A very small strip on the shoulder, or a small star in the corner of the cartridge, is all that marks the rank of rebel commanders. On the contrary, observe the dashy epaulettes, gold laces and glittering hats which make our officers conspicuous marks for the rebel sharpshooters! Until there is a change in this mode of wearing uniforms, we must look for a continuation of these long lists of killed and missing officers.

The complete details of the battle of Friday, furnished by my associate, "Will," supersedes all necessity for my continuing the narrative of these events. Daily observation of stirring interest must now take the place of the events of the past. E. E.

LATE AND IMPORTANT.

Arrival of Gen. Burnside at Fortress Monroe—Reinforcements for Gen. McClellan—Rebel Batteries Erected on James River—The Transport Jamestown Fired Into—Stonewall Jackson Not Dead.

A special correspondent of the Tribune, who arrived in this City late last night, from Gen. McCLELLAN'S headquarters on Monday morning, brings several important items of news.

Gen. BURNSIDE has arrived at Fortress Monroe, on his way to Gen. McCLELLAN'S Headquarters. On last Tuesday his troops were embarked aboard of transports and ready to cooperate with McCLELLAN in the battles on the Peninsula, but he received a dispatch purporting to come from the War Department, stating that McCLELLAN was in Richmond and the enemy in flight in all directions. Not supposing the truth of this dispatch, he disembarked his troops and was then too late to participate in the seven days' struggle. His troops have, however, arrived at Fortress Monroe, and have before this arrived at Harrison's Landing.

The transport Jamestown, conveying supplies up the James river, was fired into from rebel batteries below Harrison's Landing, on the opposite side of the river. She was obliged to run ashore to save being sunk. On the same side of the river the rebels have constructed batteries between Harrison's Landing and the Chickahominy River. One of them, which poor correspondent saw, was merely a breastwork of sods, about eight feet high, placed one behind the other.

Day before yesterday, Stonewall JACKSON, who was reported dead, sent a flag of truce in, conveying a lot of our sick and wounded, whom they could not or would not keep. They, however, refuse to receive one from us, basing their refusal upon the fact Gen. CHASE refused their request at Salloh.

Major SPEAR, of the Pennsylvania Bucktails, whose house was filled at the same time that Gen. McCALL'S body fell into the hands of the enemy, reports that the General was unfortunately killed. His column was marching along the Charles City Road when he received intelligence that the enemy were in front of him. He halted his command and rode forward, in company with Capt. SPEAR, Capt. SEARS, and Lieut. LAMBERT. When he reached a bend in the road, he found, to his surprise, the rebels drawn up in line of battle, on both sides of the road, within one hundred feet of him. They ordered him to dismount, or they would fire. He attempted to escape, and a whole platoon fired into him. Maj. SPEAR and Lieut. LAMBERT both think that at least fourteen or fifteen bullets pierced his body. They saw him fall from his horse, and believe him to be dead.

Day before yesterday, Stonewall JACKSON attacked and drove in the pickets of FRANKLIN'S Division. When Gen. FRANKLIN brought up his reserve, JACKSON fell back, and it was expected a night attack would be made, but everything passed off quietly.

NEWS FROM THE REBEL CAPITAL.

From the Washington National Republican.

We had the good fortune to get hold, last evening, of a copy of the Richmond Examiner of July 4. It has an account of the battle of Tuesday, more than confirming the previous accounts of the slaughter of the rebels on that day.

The Examiner says that the rebel killed and wounded in all the battles amount to "at least" 15,000.

It says that in the fight of Tuesday, Major WALKER, of the Fifteenth Virginia Regiment, was killed, and the Colonel (Aiken) wounded. Gen. ANDERSON is reported to have been injured by a shell.

Northern newspapers, captured from Union soldiers, are advertised for sale.

Confederate stocks rose from 89 to 97, as a result of the battles. These prices are paid in Confederate note currency.

BERRIEN, writes that he expects the "immediate" recognition of the Confederacy by the French Emperor.

The rebels believed that the New-York Seventh Regiment was in the late battles.

The Examiner talks about the "probable capitulation" of Gen. McCLELLAN'S army.

It says that the rebels captured at the White House 192,000 rounds of assorted cartridges, 75 boxes of shell, &c.

Of the markets at Richmond, it reports "snap beans" at two dollars per half peck; cabbage at one dollar or one dollar and twenty-five cents per head, and "not large at that;" and peas, "without shelling," at fifty cents per half peck. The currency in which such prices are paid need sink but a little lower to become utterly worthless.

GEN. McCLELLAN'S GUNS.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes from Fortress Monroe, July 6:

"First as to the siege guns. I never saw, and never saw any one who did see, any other siege guns in the army of the Potomac than eight or ten long eighty-pound Parrotts. These were mounted in battery on the extreme right of the army, and all day Friday, June 27, did splendid work in shelling the rebels across the Chickahominy. These guns were all saved. I saw the whole of them late on Sunday afternoon, five miles across the White Oak Swamp bridge, on ground which the enemy did not hold for forty-eight hours afterwards. They were rapidly proceeding toward the James River. Your readers may rely upon the safety of these guns.

"Then, as to wounded relatives of people in the North. Every battle-field and hospital which was formed for the reception of its wounded during the retreat, is in possession of the enemy. If a soldier was killed, his body now lies on rebel ground. If he was wounded in such a way that he could not walk, there being no ambulances to remove any wounded man, he of course fell into the hands of the enemy. If he were wounded so that he could walk without help, or by the aid of a crutch, or by leaning on a friend's shoulder, even though his wounds compelled him to rest at every half mile, his safety may be relied upon. The army, in aggregate, moved very slowly, but ten miles in twenty-four hours, and the wounded men came straggling to the hospital beats at HARRISON'S house during all my stay there, and no doubt they are straggling in still. Upon the nature of the wound the safety of the man can be ascertained. As to well men, the mails will soon be opened, and they, of course, at the first opportunity, will bring home letters telling their whereabouts.

"Every regiment in the army, with scarcely an exception, was engaged in one or another of the weekly battles, and all did heavily. The troops have the most perfect confidence in their Generals, and they all deserve it; for a braver set of officers never commanded an army. The men almost worship McCLELLAN, and would do even impossibilities if he commanded them.

"The troops, too, are united in sentiment on one other point: a firm belief in the inability of Congressional criticism and censure of McCLELLAN'S acts. When they are doing their best they cannot bear to be told that they could do better were they only to try."

NEWS FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

The Sick and Wounded at Savage's Station—Advance of Gen. McClellan—Gen. Burnside Arrived, &c.

FORTRESS MONROE, Sunday, July 6.

The officer who was in charge at the time, informs me that all our sick and wounded at Savage's Station were removed previous to the rebels advancing on that place, and were safely placed in different hospitals with others who were removed from the York River.

A flag of truce was sent up the York River from Fort Monroe this morning at 10 o'clock.

McCLELLAN has advanced up the river about seven miles since the 4th. We have heard of no fighting within the last two or three days.

A small gunboat belonging to the rebels was sunk, three days ago, by our fleet. It, together with the Teaser, had returned down the river to within about twelve miles of Harrison's Landing, and encountered some of our gunboats.

The Knickerbocker, with about 300 sick and wounded, leaves here this evening for Washington.

FORTRESS MONROE, Monday, July 7.

The steamers State of Maine, Vanderbilt, Keyseber, Kim City, Arrowsmith, Thomas A. Morgan, Massachusetts, Cambrian, New-York and the Fallie Baker are all at Fortress Monroe this morning.

The Sixth Regiment, Cavalry, the Fifth Regular Cavalry, and the Sixth Pennsylvania Lancers, leave here to-day to go up the James River.

Gen. STONEMAN is highly spoken of for his bravery and skill in his late management of affairs on the York River.

The Kim City, from Harrison's Landing, has arrived at Fortress Monroe with 500 disabled soldiers on board, mostly sick. They will be taken to New-York. She lies at anchor in the roads, and not a boat can be obtained to go out to her to procure a list of the names. The officers of transports have become so hardened that they will not allow one of their small boats to do the smallest favor, even for humanity's sake, and, consequently, we will no doubt have to abandon the idea of obtaining a list from the Kim City. There are many wounded on board. Five have died since leaving Harrison's Landing.

The flag-of-truce boat, which left here yesterday morning, returned to-day, having been up as far as White House. They report all quiet, having seen nothing of the rebels on their reconnoissance. They brought down about fifty contrabands, and a few stragglers, who had unfortunately been left behind at the time of the retreat. They also brought down eleven trunks, marked "WINZER," which were taken from WINZER, the clergyman, of Philadelphia, about six months ago, who was arrested for having articles with him contraband, which he was conveying to the enemy. They were brought here to-day from West Point.

Three o'clock P. M.—Gen. BURNSIDE'S flagboat has just arrived, and cast anchor in the Roads.

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, July 8.

A flag of truce returned to-day from a cruise up York River. At Cumberland was found ninety of our wounded soldiers. They were brought a mile away, when the rebels compelled us to return them to the hospital where we found them.

All is quiet on the James River.

OUR FORTRESS MONROE CORRESPONDENCE.

Stampede of Army Suckers—Hygeia Hotel a Hospital again—Celebration of the Fourth—Accident to the "State of Maine"—Secesh Prisoners—Escaped Union Prisoners—Interesting Accounts of Jeff. Davis and his Kingdom.

FORTRESS MONROE, Saturday, July 5, 1862.

The sudden stampede of all the army drones and hangers-on, has left Old Point once more to the quietude and decency which they had so suddenly invaded. The order for their leaving must have been somewhat peremptory, for never was there so speedy and complete a revolution in the social appearance of any place, as took place here yesterday between morning and evening. It was like the exodus of the swallows—every one knew they had gone, but how, when, or where, nobody could tell.

But if we have escaped the unpleasantness of being crowded together in a caravansera, it is probably only to exchange one discomfort for another. From all I hear, the Hygeia Hotel is again, and immediately, to be used as a hospital for receiving our poor sick and wounded men, the present hospitals not being able to contain the numbers constantly pouring in, and the large new one now in course of erection near the old Chesapeake, not being yet completed. It is one thing to visit the sick and wounded occasionally, but to live in close contact with them, to listen to the groans of sufferers during the silent hours of night and to be perpetually breathing the effluvium of angry—perhaps mortifying—wounds, is a heavy drag upon one's nerves and sensibilities. How much should it enhance our appreciation of the brave and kind-hearted women who are devoting all their time and energies to the alleviation of such suffering!

I told you, in my yesterday's letter, that the "glorious Fourth" was passing off very quietly among us—indeed, with no external demonstration whatever. Toward evening, however, we made quite a "splurge." The cannon of the Fort began suddenly to roar out their compliments, and a number of rockets simultaneously hissed through the still air. For an instant the folks—brimfull of anticipation for any sort of news in the way of war—pricked up their ears and wondered what it could mean; but then as suddenly remembering that it was only the Fourth of July, they whistled "Yankee Doodle" and composed their nerves.

The steamer State of Maine, of whose sick and wounded I sent you complete lists yesterday, left Old Point yesterday morning, but when some distance out in the Chesapeake Bay her machinery became disordered, and she had to be turned back, arriving at this port at 9 o'clock this morning. It must have been a sad disappointment to many a sick soldier on board; but they will be all well cared for in the meantime, and transferred as rapidly as possible to other vessels bound for New-York. You will find your list very full and complete. I send you, to-day, a full list of the Keyseber's sick and wounded, irrespective of her 150 who were left at the Portsmouth hospital.

The Hero came in yesterday with 500 secesh prisoners from the James River, and a harder looking set of fellows it would be difficult to meet. They were dressed in all sorts of costumes—usually a dirty grey—and with slouched hats, their shoes very dilapidated, in fact, many of them bare-footed; but all having the appearance of being well fed, although it is impossible to get it into the heads of people here, that they ever taste anything but a decoction of whisky and gunpowder.

The Hero was swarmed at the wharf, alongside of the Minnesota, loaded with our wounded soldiers, and as I stood on board the latter, among these two masses of men, it was strange to compare those who had so recently met in deadly conflict. I overheard one of our medical officers, on board the Hero, in conversation with a number of the rebels around him. He was trying to appeal to their reason, but for greater chance would he have had with so many mustangs. One man among them—my gentleman, by the way, for no rebel gentleman I have met deal in vulgar invectives—was perfectly rabid in his denunciations. He would listen to nothing—accept nothing—attend to no explanations about BURNS'S "woman" proclamation, &c. He was simply for fighting us to the last man, &c., &c. I never saw this man before, but I venture to prophesy—merely by his talk—that he would desert if he had a chance. I never shall forget the sneaking sneer with which he said: "Some of you fancy you are going to get over us with kind words, and so-forth—but by—you'll never get over us." That is very evident; for such wild beasts there is nothing but cannon balls and bayonets.

We had a very interesting arrival here last evening, in the persons of officers of our army who had escaped from the rebels. They are:

First Lieut. HENRY W. MAYER, Company G, Ninth Kentucky.

Second Lieut. G. W. BROWN, Company E, Twenty-third Missouri.

Second Lieut. N. J. CASY, Company F, Twenty-third Missouri.

First Lieut. I. S. ADAY, Company D, Fourteenth Iowa.

Second Lieut. G. H. LOGAN, Company I, Fourteenth Iowa.

Second Sergt REGANS, Company I, Fourteenth Iowa.

Third Sergt REGANS, Company I, Fourteenth Iowa.

After a confinement of some six weeks at Montgomery, Ala., they were transferred from that place to Macon, Ga., on the 20th May last, and arrived there on the 1st June. Here they remained until the 16th June, when three of them—Lieuts. MAYER, BROWN and CASY—made their escape, almost miraculously, on a dark night, followed the next day, (at 2 P. M.,) by the other four, who, however, were not aware of their companions' escape.

The recital of these gentlemen, if fully put to paper, would make quite an interesting little romance; but I have no time for it, nor do I think it wise, as it may teach the enemy how to look out against others who may escape in a similar manner. Suffice it to say, that having found two wretched canoes, some sixteen feet long, they managed, with oars formed out of their cantenas and tin pans, to propel themselves along the Ochmulgee, which runs into the Altamaha, and, after a thousand hairbreadth escapes, contrived to get to Altamaha Bay, on the Atlantic coast, landing on Wolf Island, and then at Sapelo Island. There they got on board the Wanesutha, which took them to our flag-ship Florida, in St. Symon's Sound, and thence they were finally conveyed, by the United States gunboat Massachusetts, to Old Point.

These gentlemen have amused us by lifting the curtain to give us a very nice little peep into the interior of the dominions of King Jeff. the First. They assure us that, in spite of all that the rebels may pretend to the contrary, there is a strong Union feeling at Montgomery and Mobile, surpassed only by what exists at Memphis! They say that that Union feeling is only kept down by main force, that the whole place is under military control; military officers sensing everything belonging to the people and compelling them to take their worthless shinplasters in return. They assert, moreover, that there is such strict surveillance of the Press that even officers have a difficulty in getting a newspaper when there is anything to hide from the public, but that there is no difficulty when they have gained any advantage over us. In spite of this the papers were often very plain spoken,—that they grumbled loudly against Jeff. DAVIS & Co.; one of them going far enough to call him an "incubus." The general impression, both at Montgomery and Macon, was that if we took Richmond the game was over!

As to the social and commercial state of matters the following is a list of a few ordinary things I took down at their dictation:

Common one dollar shoes	$4 00
Calfskin boots	25 00
Flour, per barrel	20 00
Sugar, per lb	0 50
Eggs, per dozen	0 50
Green tea, per lb	6 00
Coffee, per lb. (none to be had)	1 50
Mess beef, per barrel	45 00
Mess pork, per barrel	50 00
Foolscap paper, per ream	25 00
Commonest molasses	1 65
A $6 common coat	20 00

These prices, they said, were what ruled at the time New-Orleans was taken. Since then they have been gradually rising! And yet we hear of a last ditch somewhere, and of this war lasting ten years!

No war news of consequence at the time of mailing. NEMO.

A Dearth of News—Sick and Wounded Soldiers—Gen. Burnside and Staff at Old Point—A Transport Fired Into on the James River, &c.

OLD POINT, Monday, July 7, 1862.

There is a perfect dearth of any news of consequence here, up to this time—2 P. M. The burning sun is shining upon us with tropical fervor; the thermometer, at one place, standing at nearly 100 degrees in the shade. It is just one of those days when sweltering man and beast are glad to escape from toil and take refuge in cool, shady nooks, and when the best and most enduring of correspondents are fit for nothing but sherry cobblers and going to sleep.

The Kim City arrived from Harrison's Landing this morning, with some 500 sick and wounded, but instead of coming up to the wharf, laid far out in the Roads to take in coal, and then proceeded to New-York. I made every possible effort to obtain a list of her sick and wounded—even hiring a boat on purpose to convey me on board of her; but all to no purpose. When I got there I was informed by one of the physicians in charge, that the list had been sent to Dr. CUYLER, the Medical Director at the Fort, by the Quartermaster of the vessel. On returning to Dr. C., whom I had seen immediately before, I found that no such list had reached him, and has not done so up to this moment.

The fact is that in spite of Dr. CUYLER'S repeated orders, and the herculean efforts he is perpetually making to obtain immediate and correct lists of all the wounded and sick that are brought, it seems impossible for him to obtain them. Whether it be the result of sheer negligence, or of any hocus-pocus arrangements, I know not; but it is quite certain that public interests are not benefited when a newspaper correspondent is impeded in his efforts to lay the names of some 500 sick and wounded soldiers before their agonized and expectant friends at home. Dr. CUYLER is determined not to let the matter rest until he gets it into shape, and it is to be hoped he will succeed. Correct lists should be made out on board during the passage of the vessel, and, the very instant she arrives, a fair copy should be placed in the hands of the Medical Director of this Department.

Gen. McCLELLAN'S proclamation was being freely circulated here, at the same time, if not before, it was probably stirring all New-York up with an important "Extra." It was received here with the greatest enthusiasm, and all expressed a hope that there was truth in the very current rumor that our young General is to be raised to the rank of Lieutenant-General. There is not a word in that proclamation which the whole army and people will not endorse.

We have been now two whole days without any New-York papers, which makes a considerable inroad into the life of the place. July 4 is a holiday with your printers, which accounts for no Saturday papers, and the Sunday ones blockaded on the top of this.

A negro was shot here yesterday in attempting to break through military orders. He was attempting to cross over to Hampton, when the guard challenged him. The negro refused to answer again and upon which the sentinel levelled his gun and fired at him.

The steamer Alice Price, BOTTOMLEY'S flag-boat, from North Carolina, has come in, with the General and Staff on board. What his business yesterday was here. Everybody here, however, apparently agrees that his expedition among us can only take place. Reinforcements of cavalry and infantry have also come up—but whence, whom, and what numbers I am not at liberty to say. Those who had blankets or no blankets on this morning, say that all is quiet, cheerful and confident there.

Three cases of sunstroke have been brought to the Hygeia Hospital.

Four O'clock P. M.—Intelligence has just been received of the rebels having fired upon one of our transports going up the James River with troops last evening. I have no time to get full particulars before the mail leaves, but the event is said to have occurred three miles below Harrison's Landing; and, after several shots, only one of our men was wounded in the leg. The Empire City is this moment coming up with part of BURNSIDE'S men on board.

Continued Bombardment of Vicksburgh—Affairs in Arkansas—Movements of the Rebels in Mississippi, &c.

CAIRO, Tuesday, June 8.

The steamer Sunshine, from Vicksburgh the 3d, has arrived. The bombardment was continued. The town was deserted except by the military.

The news from White River, Ark., is not encouraging. Col. FRYE still holds St. Charles. No relief had yet reached Gen. CURTIS. The whole country bordering on White River is reported in arms, except those lying from the conscription, which is enforced in the most rigorous manner. Boats are frequently fired on from the shore.

The Grenada Appeal of the 3d says that large numbers of Confederate troops have gone from Tunica to Water Valley, forty miles south of Holly Springs.

BRECKINRIDGE'S Division has gone to Vicksburgh. A large number of Mississippi troops have gone to Richmond.

Nearly all the Government stores have been removed from Grenada to a place occupied by 2,000 or 3,000 rebels. They have burned all the trestle-work of the bridges between Memphis and Coldwater.

Gen. HERRMAN has issued an appeal to the people of Arkansas, and says that he intends to annoy the enemy in every possible way, and asks the people to do their part.

The Little Rock Gazette, of the 28th, says that the Federals have evacuated Ludlay Bay and St. Charles, and the whole lower White River, and have gone in the direction of Memphis.

Gen. CURTIS left Batesville and crossed Black River, and is supposed to be making toward Cache Bridges, with a view to reaching the Mississippi River, via Crowley's Ridge.

Dispatches to the Navy Department—Operations at Baton Rouge, Vicksburgh, &c.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, July 8.

The Navy Department has received dispatches dated United States steam ship Hartford, off Vicksburgh, June 22. The following is from Capt. CRAVEN to Commodore FARRAGUT:

SIR: In obedience to your orders of the 12th, I left Baton Rouge, on my way up the river, at 1 P. M. of that day. On the 14th, at 9 P. M., I sent the Marine Guard and a party of seamen, in all about 100 men, under charge of Lieut. LOWRY, at Bayou Sara, for the purpose of destroying the telegraph apparatus, and cutting the wires, and with orders to inform the authorities of that town that we were on the river for the purpose of enforcing the laws of our common country, and protecting its loyal citizens, and at the same time to warn them that if any hostile demonstrations were made upon our vessels or transports as they passed in front of their town by the thieves and murderers, yclept "guerrillas," the town would be held responsible for it, and at least be laid under contribution, if not dealt with more severely. About 11 in the morning, Lieut. LOWRY returned with his party to the ship, having thoroughly accomplished his work, excepting securing the telegraph apparatus, which had been removed but a few minutes before he landed. About half a mile of the wire was cut and brought aboard, and the vitriol and batteries destroyed. The people ashore seemed to be peaceably disposed, were quite civil, and made no disrespectful demonstrations. The Mayor or Chief Magistrate informed LOWRY that but two or three days previous to our arrival the town had been visited by bands of guerrillas; that they had committed many outrages against law and order, and he had arrested a Lieutenant who commanded the party, but he was rescued by his men and borne off to the woods. He represented these guerrillas as a lawless set of men, whom the inhabitants of the country and small towns had greater dread of than for the visits of our navy or even our army; and he hoped we would not hold him responsible for the acts of a cut-throat band. Before leaving shore, LOWRY, with the flag of our Union at the head of his party, and to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," marched through several of the principal streets. We passed Natchez at about 10½ of the morning of the 16th. On the morning of the 17th the Richmond joined us, and at about 9½ of that morning we passed Rodney. We arrived at our present anchorage on the 18th, at 11½ in the morning. Nowhere on our route were we molested, and I saw no change in the aspect of things since our last trip, excepting at Grand Gulf. The town there was riddled by shot, and then destroyed by fire. On a small hill just to the right of the town, was a small earthwork which had been only recently thrown up, and was capable of receiving three or four small field-pieces. It, as well as the town, was entirely deserted.

On the 20th inst. Commander PEARSON arrived here with ten of his mortarboats. Yesterday the Miami arrived with another, and this afternoon four others were towed up. Commander PEARSON informed me that his flotilla was fired upon at Ellis Cliffs, and that it is the intention of the rebels to mount a troublesome battery at that place; also at Quitman's Landing, as he learned at a farm-house coming up. The boats which arrived this morning were fired at from Ellis Cliffs and on the Empire Parish. One was hit two or three times, one shot temporarily disabling one of her boilers. Yesterday morning I sent the Oneida and Winona to look after these places. To-morrow I shall send the Katahdin to convoy the two boats as far as Baton Rouge, or until she meets you. Here at Vicksburgh the rebels appear to be quite busy in extending and fortifying their works, and it is said they have some 10,000 troops quartered in and about the town.

IMPORTANT FROM NASSAU.

Seizure of the Princeton Orders by a British Man-of-War.

Capt. Semmes of the Sumter Too Considerable.

CONFEDERATE STEAMER OBOLIN WRECKED.

Unsuccessful Attempt of the Nashville and the Rats to Run the Blockade.

The brig Lucy Darling, Bailey, master, from Capt. Lowrie, from Nassau on June 28, with cargo to J. EVANS, arrived yesterday. On July 5, twenty miles northeast from Sandy Hook, passed a large ship, in tow of a steamer, steering northward.

The steamer Osceola, built in England for the war, was under seizure by Capt. Hamilton, of H. M. ship Greyhound, and a prize crew was on board. While sailed, she was under command of Capt. Semmes, formerly of the Sumter.

The steamer Osceola, for Charleston, with munitions of war, ran on a rock off northeast point of Abaco, and sank in five fathoms water. She becomes total wreck. The wreckers have saved the greater part of her cargo, in a damaged condition, and it was sold at auction on the 26th and 27th of June. Among the articles saved were six small brass cannon, small arms, and quantities of "Waite."

The steamers Nashville and Rats were lying in Cardenas for New-Inlet, N. C., and both were chased by the Nashville getting into Gun Cay, Alacran, and the Rats into Sisters Tortas.

The brig Darling left at Nassau the schooner Herald, from England, for Charleston, S. C., with Minie, &c., for do., do.; Sarah, for do., do.; Total Gain, for Charleston, do.; Morse, for do., Mattie, from and for Charleston, ready; Ann, for do., waiting. Capt. Lowrie reports that there were two steamers at Cockburn harbor and one off Hog Island, names not known. On June 24, a large full-rigged ship, English, supposed (by chart,) making for Nassau; also a large bark, heavily loaded, showing English colors, and bound for Nassau.

The ship Average, Capt. SAWYER, from Liverpool for New-York, with a cargo of sugar, in bags and boxes, fell on her beam-ends in the Gulf Stream between Florida and Bahama Bank, and was by wreckers from Nassau fall in with her, and cut down the mainmast; but the ship would not right, and towed her ashore at Eleuthera, where a portion of her cargo was saved in a damaged condition. The ship when last heard from was lying. The wreckers and crew arrived in Nassau on the 4th inst., in the schooner Triumph.

The Lucy Darling brings as passengers Mrs. E. Chambers, Miss Chambers, Miss V. Chambers, Miss Smith, J. O. Smith, John Hughes, Geo. Geddes, A. Miller, John Jones, Angus McLean, Mr. Pratt, Jones.

A PANIC AT FRONT ROYAL.

FRONT ROYAL, Tuesday, July 8.

The reports here that one of our wagon trains on the road leading southward, near Flint Hill, was attacked yesterday by 200 rebel bushwackers, created a panic on a small scale. The difficulty was at first believed to be the advance guard of a large force. Shortly afterward the rebels were dispersed into the mountains, and nothing more was heard of them.

GEN. GRANT'S BRIGADE.

Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

WINCHESTER, Va., Monday, June 30, 1862.

In passing through Berryville on my way to Winchester, after forcing the Shenandoah at Berry's Ferry, Gen. GRANT made some impromptu arrests. One was a man named WILLIAM A. JOHNSON, alias SAMUEL H. INGALL, a Sergeant of the Ninth New-York Regiment; also, DANIEL E. SOWERS and CYRUS McCORMICK, who, upon the day after the Front Royal fight, secreted two sergeants of the Pennsylvania Battery, who had been wounded in the Front Royal engagement on May 30, and assisted them to escape from imprisonment. Hungry and worn, they reached the Shenandoah, at Berry's Ferry, where Sowers and his companion crossed them over, and then with promises of protection and pay, induced them to surrender their weapons from them. They then delivered them over to the cavalry pickets. Also, Jesse Wynn, a citizen and spy of the enemy. These men were sent forward in custody.

Gen. GRANT'S command, upon its arrival at Middletown, encamped immediately opposite the place where (across the Shenandoah) the rebels had their eighth Regiment ensconded the night before.

Considerable reconnoissance has been made in the Valley of the Shenandoah, and information of the enemy, which is conflicting, is being received daily. Our cavalry are watching an opportunity to cut off a portion of our army. Before daylight yesterday morning Gen. GRANT'S command was thrown in the direction of Winchester, and down to the bridge over the Shenandoah. The enemy's pickets were driven in, and the Valley for some distance, and upon arriving at the bridge, about eight hundred infantry and a battery of artillery, supposed to be the rear guard of First Virginia Cavalry, and upon an ineffectual cascade of the enemy near Fort Kearney, and a skirmish ensued, in which two of the cavalry were wounded, not fatally, and two rebels were killed, one on the rocks and some passed by which they were covered, by a vigorous return fire. The loss of the enemy are not known. GRANT'S Brigade is holding the ground they have gained, at the Big Fort Valley, which is the highest point in the Massanutten and a range of, dominating the country to the westward.

This reconnoissance is, from the information at present, in likely to reveal the position of the rebel army, known to be large, and to be ready to strike a blow. It seems to be the purpose of the rebels to seek JACKSON out, instead of waiting for him to join our forces.

The New Commander of the Arago.

At a meeting of the passengers on board the United States Mail steamship Arago, held the morning of July 4, 1862, Lieut. FERRAN, U. S. N., Commanding, and Jas. A. SEYMOUR, Secretary, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we have witnessed with great satisfaction the attention and kindly care manifested by Capt. HENRY S. GARDENER, in the large number of sick and wounded soldiers on board. We have given ourselves to Dr. McGAHAN, the efficient Surgeon in charge, and have seen them with every delicacy and nourishment that ship afforded. Every effort has been made by him to render their condition as comfortable and pleasant as their sufferings would permit.

Resolved, That we are under deep and lasting obligations to Capt. GARDENER for his gentlemanly and courteous conduct during the voyage, for his constant and unremitting attention to the comfort of the passengers, and his efforts to make the passage agreeable to them, and for the generous manner in which he personally and freely gave to us the use of the steamer's crew, guns and ammunition, to assist in the proper celebration of the day. We regret to leave him, but shall ever remember his kindness with the most grateful emotions.

Resolved, That our thanks are due to the officers of the ship for the generous and cheerful manner in which they contributed to our comfort.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the leading newspapers in the City of New-York, and a copy thereof be sent to Capt. GARDENER.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

THE FIRST OF THE SERIES OF GREAT BATTLES.

The Battle on the Left—Hooker's Division and the Hazelrigs it has Undergone—A Double Victory in one Day—An Unfortunate Order—Our Losses and those of the Enemy—Incidents.

[Special Dispatch to The New-York Times.]
HEADQUARTERS, NEAR RICHMOND, Thursday, June 26, 1862.

On the [illegible] from Gen. Keyes for the First and Second Brigades in his Division, the Third being at that time on duty in Gaines' [illegible] and [illegible] to the front of our lines. Everything was set in readiness for the march during the night, and our troops firmly believed that the sanguinary hour for the advance had arrived. In spite of the increased duty delegated to Heintzelman's Division—they having fought the battles, dug the trenches, leveled the parapets, done picket duty where danger lurked in the shape of the enemy on every path they marched, and the fatigue of such a campaign, the heroes of Yorktown, Williamsburgh, Fair Oaks, and a dozen skirmishes, with alacrity and enthusiasm long before the [illegible] Saturday in the morning hospitals, scarcely convalescent, became impressed with the hope of being among the foremost to [illegible] that with their old positions in the campaign, against the advice of the doctors, determined to join the fray or leave their bodies on the field.

THE ENEMY'S FORCES IN FRONT.

At daybreak the troops reached the front, and were formed in line of battle on our old picket line, at the edge of the wood in front of the twin houses. The Fourth Regiment under Col. Graham, forming the left of the Second Brigade, under Gen. Sumner, forming the right wing. Gorman's left was supported by Kearney's Division, and Sumner right, from some cause or other, was not supported until near 7 o'clock in the afternoon, the Second having been made to Sumner's support.

THE ADVANCE.

Two companies from each regiment were now thrown forward as skirmishers, and the order received to advance, the skirmishers pushed forward their respective regiments. After advancing about 300 yards in the woods, the enemy opened fire on our skirmishers left. Two or three volleys were expended, when the rebels scattered and disappeared, leaving [illegible] the enemy immediately after the retreat of their skirmishers, the left opened a heavy fire on the right as they were advancing cautiously through the woods. The dense undergrowth and swampy morass, together with the [illegible] fire of the enemy, rendered the advance [illegible] and difficult. The men were [illegible] to lead and return the fire when waist-deep in water and mud; yet gallantly they went [illegible] the ground inch by inch, repelling the [illegible]

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Brooklyn Navy-yard.

The rush of business still continues at the Brooklyn Navy-yard. There are now some 2,700 men employed every day, and the monthly disbursements cannot be less than $600,000. The rapidity with which vessels are overhauled and repaired is frequently astonishing. The Seminole and Bainbridge, for instance, which are hardly a week in from sea, are now bereft of all signs of service, as though they were just launched. The new Armamental-square has been deemed worthy of especial attention, and a watchman is now stationed at its entrance, to prevent the curious from fingering the "historical artillery" preserved so carefully within the inclosure. The new commander is now perfect "master of the situation," and is making himself popular every day.

The iron-clad Bazaste is rapidly assuming a finished appearance. The lower part of the hull is covered with plates, and on the 1st of August she is to be taken to the Novelty Iron Works, to have her molding completed. There are about seventy hands employed on her. There were five hundred engaged in stripping her at first.

The new steam corvette Adirondack, finished and reported ready for sea some time since, is in commission and manned in the stream, unable to obey the "sea orders" of Mr. Welles, in consequence of a slight disarrangement in her machinery, which will soon be remedied. She has on board provisions, stores and ammunition for a pretty long cruise, and will leave the Yard under sealed instructions. As she stands she has hardly cost more than $120,000, about as much as the Niagara's repairs will require.

The Seminole and Bainbridge, a steam gunboat and a brig-of-war, have, as before intimated, been emptied of all the requisites of active duty, from "men to marling-spikes." They are to be overhauled and fitted out for service again, no light-draft vessels being at present eligible for that unedurable position known as "ordinary" on the Naval Register. Their marines have been transferred to barracks, the crews discharged or retained, as each man's service-term directed, and their officers allowed a few days' furlough. Both have been surveyed. The Seminole, rumor says, is rotten—rotten as a pear. She is "the most economically built steamer in the navy," her original hull having cost less than that of any of her cotemporaries. She will make up for her cheapness in being made seaworthy.

The old Receiving-ship North Carolina still occupies her old anchorage. She has not half so many sailors on board as are wanted—the whole number being 150—still quite a large crew to muster twice a day on her decks. The completion of the annual overhauling makes her look respectable, and strangers visiting the Yard consider her a "magnificent line-of-battle ship." The Prince de Joinville, great naval man as he is, was one of those thus deceived by the fine aspect of the vessel. The stoppage of the grog-ration is now the all-absorbing topic among her crew; and it is said they intend to renew the old smuggling tricks, and again patronise the Fishtown pirates, if no endeavor be attempted.

The receiving department of the yard is now monopolized by the steam frigates Ticonderoga and Lackawanna, which are receiving their finishing touches. The latter will be ready for launching in a few weeks, having been planked already. These vessels will be of a larger size than the Adirondack, and be better calculated for the general business of men-of-war.

The storeships Relief and Supply are in the stream. The latter has had a new clock put on board. The steam transport Connecticut is ready for sea, and will sail on Thursday next for New-Orleans. She will take letters, papers and parcels for the vessels stationed there.

The "military arm" of the navy, the United States Corps of Marines, still performs the soldier duty of the Navy-yard. From the barracks on Flushing-avenue, where about 200 rank and file are stationed, a guard is sent down every morning, from which sentries for the various posts are selected. Maj. Gilmore is at present the Executive Officer of the marines.

The other vessels at the Yard are the Savannah, Penguin, Magnolia and Daylight, all preparing for sea.

Festival of St. Bridget's Parochial School.

One of the most social reunions of the season occurred, yesterday, at Jones' Wood. The school children attached to the day and Sabbath school of St. Bridget's Church, Avenue B, under the pastoral charge of Rev. Father Mesnet, collected en masse among the dim shadows of the wood early in the morning; but before noon a variety of hangers-on of the place made sure progress to and beyond the picket fence, and over and above the conscientious scruples of the gate-keepers, till plentifully provided stands of refreshments studded the park to the river's brink. There was a shooting-gallery with the inspiring mark of a weak-kneed traitor, looking for his life of mercy beneath the true aim of a Yankee rifleman. Hence came "the sound of the merry laugh" and joyous shout. Hith, far, was the elderly lady, most assuredly of the contrary, and gay of soul, joined in the merry step, and rehearsed the glorious days of childhood passed in happy "auld Ireland." There were the genial Larger beer, where seductive foaming pleasures were pressed beneath the wholesome shade, and hither (women and) men repaired, when no other argument became so popular as that expressed in the words, "sure, and this awful warrum the-day." Gin stands and catch-penny glass-blowers were also on hand, but were not the drink they aimed to be. There was no end of flirting and "sparking"—the ugly name for tossing one's fellow creatures aloft in a luxuriously-cushioned swing—and Father Mooney was fain to give his reverend countenance to the splendid brass bands and merry cotillion parties upon the elevated platforms. The glorious harmony that filled the leafy ball-room was produced by a coalition of Werworsen's and Cesarella's Bands. The most elevating and patriotic-inspiring of all the divertisements centered in the seeding to unknown regions of space a succession of beautiful balloons, each one, as it gracefully swept away into blue ether, conveying the blessing felt and shown in looks, if not expressed in words, of Father Mooney and the brethren of the Church, no less than of the generous donator, Mr. Bassman, of the Cooper Union. The first of these elegant balloons was "The Union," flashing back the bright words as far as the eye dared follow the sight. The next was "The Gallant Sixty-ninth," the third "America," and the fourth "Old Ireland Shamrock." Shouts of applause followed the ascent of the respective emblems, and dark clouds, that had but a little before threatened to wet down the ardor of the assembled multitude, fled at sight of omens so cheering, and, as retreat of the aggrieved flushes the victor, so indeed was shelled for lasting endurance the ambition of the brave sons of Erin on this their loved adopted soil, and their merry holiday.

Crowds of children as there were, housed at the 6 o'clock homeward exodus, countenanced by the family now and their present partners, had small effect upon the population of the Wood; for each car dumped its load all day long, and the knowledge gathered from a back look over the roads from the City hitherward was, "Still they come."

Moonlight beamed down upon a homeward-bound party less numerous, perhaps, than the rising sun smiled upon as they whistled and danced to the merry notes of "St. Patrick's Day in the morning."

Secession Flag Waved from Fort Lafayette.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I do not know who is the military commandant of Fort Lafayette, but with your permission I would bring to his notice the following fact, which can be attested by more than one witness. On the Fourth of July I hired a boat at Fort Hamilton, and with a party of ladies and gentlemen rowed a short distance. When returning we made the circuit of Fort Lafayette, and when nearly opposite the northwest corner our attention was called to a hat being waved to us through one of the grated windows of a cell, in which the boatman informed us a rebel was confined. Contrary to my remonstrance, but by way of badinage, one of the ladies of the party foolishly waved a handkerchief, when the rebel becoming emboldened deliberately drew from his breast a secession flag and waved it outside the grating, until becoming convinced of our non-approval thereof by my attempting to draw the attention of the sentry on duty to the fact, he hastily withdrew it.

The question therefore naturally arises, are secession flags permitted to be waved by rebels in Fort Lafayette on the anniversary of our National Independence? If so, then they ought not to be contraband of war anywhere. Cabinet Ministers at Washington please take notice.

I inclose my name and address. UNION.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

THE POLICE AMONG THE RUNNERS.—The following memorial was received by Mr. S. C. Hawley, Chief Clerk of the Police Department, and yesterday afternoon it was presented to the Board of Police Commissioners. It is understood that some immediate action will be taken upon the subject:

To the Honorable the Commissioners of Police for the Metropolitan Police District:

GENTLEMEN: The undersigned, merchants of the City of New-York, respectfully memorial your honorable body to take into consideration a very general and growing evil which has existed for the past few months, and which has been steadily and alarmingly increasing until it has become a great nuisance.

Ever since your honorable body, in its own discretion, have removed the crew of the Harbor Police boat from the Quarantine Station, S. I., our vessels have been boarded there by gangs of lawless persons known as "Slushmen" and "Runners," whose ostensible business is to obtain sailors for boarding-house keepers, and who, under the feigned name of "runners for commission houses," commit all sorts of depredations on our property, viz.: Our vessels, their tackle and cargo, which calls for the application of an immediate remedy, as in several instances the damage done by them and their accomplices is said to have amounted to hundreds of dollars. With a view of arresting this at present unprotected and lawless traffic, we would respectfully ask your honorable body to station a boat's crew of the Harbor Police, as heretofore, at the Quarantine Station, Staten Island, to protect the interests, and remedy this serious grievance of the shipping merchants of New-York.

This memorial is signed by about fifty of our most prominent shipping merchants, firms and individuals, among which are D. B. Allen, Grinnell, Minturn & Co., John G. Dale, Spofford, Tileston & Co., Sturgis & Co., Getrichs & Co., Knubardt & Co., and others.

In addition to the above is appended the following recommendation of Dr. Gunn, Health Officer at Quarantine:

QUARANTINE, Monday, June 30, 1862.

The above grievance is one which has been very frequently complained of to me, by the owners and captains of vessels, and a communication was also received from Gov. Morgan on the subject, but there being no police force stationed at the Quarantine, and the invasion and pillering of vessels occurring after the visitation of the Health Officer, it is utterly out of my province to control or prevent it.

A. N. GUNN, M. D., Health Officer.

BILLIARDS—BOSTON VS. NEW-YORK.—It will be remembered that in the great billiard tournament which took place in this City last Spring, two young men evinced rare skill in playing. They were Mr. Goldthwaite, of Boston, and Mr. Derry, of Cable Cannon's rooms, of this City. They have recently played a match in Boston, when Goldthwaite was victor, and now they are to play a return match in this City. The time appointed was the 24th inst., but as on that day the running races are to take place in Boston, the time is changed to the 17th. Wilkes' Spirit, which is the authority in such matters, says: "No inconsiderable interest is felt in the billiard world concerning this second match, the fine play exhibited in the first materially enhancing this feeling. The Bostonians feel more than ever confident in their champion, while the New-Yorkers have by no means lost faith in Derry, who, they trust, will be able to reverse the previous result. The match will take place in the upper room of Mr. O'Connor's establishment on Union-square, which will be conveniently arranged for the accommodation of the spectators."

THREE MEN STABBED IN RECTOR-STREET.—About two o'clock, on Monday morning, three men were dangerously stabbed in a cigar-store in Rector-street, near Greenwich. From evidence in the possession of the Police authorities, it appears that the names of the offenders are D. Maloney and Wm. Kenny, both of whom are boatmen, doing business at Pier No. 9 North River. The names of the parties who were stabbed are John Reiner, Hans Neumeyer and Herman Bresper. They are Germans, and by those who know them well, they are said to be very peaceable and respectable citizens. They were taken to the hospital by the Police of the First Ward, where the attending physicians pronounced their wounds to be of such a nature as to render their cases hopeless. The cause of the affray is yet unknown, but the Police are engaged in working up the case, and in trying to arrest the parties who made the assault. The latter escaped immediately after the affray.

FORGERY CASES.—In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, City Judge McCunn disposed as follows of certain forgery cases: Marina Scully and Eliza Barrett, aged 15 and 16 years, were charged with forgery in the second degree, but the District-Attorney accepted a plea of forgery in the fourth degree, for which the prisoners were sent to the City Prison, at Mr. Hall's request, for one month. Catharine Somerman, a woman of respectable appearance, was indicted for the same offence, but Mr. Hall, after hearing all the evidence in the case, told the Court and jury that he could not convict the accused, and accordingly the jury found a verdict of not guilty. Robert Williams and Henry Jones were also indicted, but on the affidavit of one of the parties, the case was postponed till next term. Charles Martin's case was not now disposed of, in consequence of the unavoidable absence of some material witnesses, touching defendant's previous good character.

IMPORTANT ARREST OF A CONFIDENCE WOMAN.—A woman, calling herself Mrs. Davis, alias Mrs. Johnson, alias Mrs. Jones, with several other aliases, was arrested, yesterday, by Capt. Dickinson, of the Twenty-eighth Precinct, upon the charge of robbing the house of Mr. Voorhees, No. 94 Vandam-street, of about $50 worth of female wearing apparel. The accused recently took board at the house, but after remaining there for a day or two, she very unceremoniously left with the clothing. She is known to the Police as an old offender, and has been practicing this game for the last two years in the City. About $200 worth of pawn tickets were found in her possession. She is very genteel in dress and manners, and for this reason she is regarded as a dangerous character.

CITY MORTALITY.—The City Inspector reports that 339 persons died in New-York last week—20 more than the previous week, and 40 more than the average of the previous month, and of 24 more than the mortality of the corresponding week of 1861. Of the deceased, 172 were children under five years of age. The mortality by the principal diseases was as follows: Consumption, 29; cholera infantum, 23; infantile convulsions, 18; dropsy in the head, 14; diarrhœa, 10; typhoid fever, 13; diptheria, 13; deaths from external causes, 27—among which are reported 7 premature births, 1 suicide, 4 drowned, 11 killed by accidents.

SUNDRY DEATHS ON A SHIPWRECK.—Edward Fitz, a native of Ireland, aged about 22 years, accidentally fell from the scaffold of a ship at the Balance Dock, foot of Pike-street, yesterday, and died in about half an hour after wards. The deceased was at work for Enoch & Wyse, upon the ship Cotsly, at the time of the accident. He was both a shipwright and caulker, and by his employers he was regarded as a very reliable man. Coroner Cozzens held an inquest upon the body last evening, at the Dead-house of the New-York Hospital. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

THE EFFECTS OF THE HEAT.—Officer Donohue, of the Fifth Precinct, yesterday found an unknown woman, about 30 years of age, in the rear of No. 203 Church-street, suffering from the effects of heat. She died while being conveyed to the Hospital.... Officer Pearsons, of the Tenth Precinct, found Alexander Kennan almost dead in Bayard-street, from the effects of a sun-stroke. She was conveyed to the Hospital.... Amelia Hoffman and Hannah Tuck were found by the Police, prostrated with heat, and conveyed to their homes, by the Fifteenth Precinct Police.

AFTER THE DRUGGISTS.—The Excise Commissioners are vigorously at work. Yesterday they held a meeting and granted twenty-seven licenses, from which the revenue is $675. Very many druggists sell in a moderate and quiet way, liquors for which they have no licenses. They contend that the use of brandy in a glass of soda water is purely medicinal and that they do not need a license. The Commissioners see the matter in another light, and have determined to prosecute all who omit to take the proper papers.

PERSONAL.—Mr. John M. Clay, who is now in this City with a fine stable of racers, including Wagram, who has miscalled and delighted the sporting world, is a son of the old Kentucky statesman. As such his presence is of interest, and attracts much notice. Mr. Clay is of medium height, with only the Clay mouth and teeth to mark humanity, of an impulsive nature, and devoted exclusively to the improvement of racing stock.

PULPIT MARKET PILFER.—The filth about Fulton Market is absolutely offensive. On the sidewalk and in the gutter of the Beekman-street side, the odorous mess grows daily deeper and more nasty. If it is a necessary sequence of normal trade for such dirt to gather, it might be deprived of its most offensive peculiarities by an occasional swash from the nozzle of a hose pipe. As it now is, it constitutes almost emphatically a public nuisance.

COMMENCEMENT AT ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE.—The seventeenth annual commencement of St. John's College, at Fordham, will take place to-day. The exercises, which consist of orations, music, delivery of diplomas, &c., will commence at 12 M., for which the public will be in season if they secure seats in the train which leaves the corner of Twenty-sixth-street and Fourth-avenue at 11¼ A. M.

ROBBED IN A DISGRACEFUL HOUSE.—John Bacon, a countryman, was robbed at a late hour on Sunday night, of the sum of $90, in a house in Greene-street. Mary Marshall, the keeper of the place, was arrested, and $20 of the stolen money were found in one of the prisoner's stockings. Justice Quackenbush committed Mary for trial.

A REVOLT AMONG THE GRAIN-SHOVELERS.—The grain-shovelers were not at work on Monday. Some two thousand of them were housed, in the morning, from Coenties-slip to Broad-street, demanding that the elevators shall be dispensed with. As these machines destroy their business, and endanger the lives of the craft by suffocation, they express their determination not to work in connection with them.

INDICTMENT OF MRS. REAL.—An indictment has been found by the Grand Jury of the General Sessions, against Mary Real, for the murder of her late husband, Peter C. Real, the particulars of which are familiar to the public. She will be arraigned to put in her plea to-morrow.

THE RELICS OF THE TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT.—An advertisement in another column summons the members of the Twenty-second Regiment, National Guard, still in this City, to meet this evening at the armory of Company C, on Sixth-avenue.

BEREAVED BUTCHERS.—The lightning on Monday night played thunder with those who deal in beef and mutton. We were informed at the market that whole stocks were discolored and spoiled by the effects of the electric spark.

A GUILTY CUB.—Henry Cuge pleaded guilty to petit larceny, and was remanded for sentence until Saturday next.

Kings County Board of Supervisors.

THE RELIEF FUND—PENITENTIARY STATISTICS—THE WORK OF THE EXCISE COMMISSIONERS—A THIRSTY COMMUNITY—SUPPLIES FOR THE INSTITUTIONS—KEEPER OF THE PENITENTIARY.

An adjourned meeting of the Board was held last evening at the County Jail, President Cheever in the Chair. The Commissioners of the Relief Fund sent in their seventh report, showing that between the 20th of May and the 23d of June they distributed to families of volunteers $13,463 20. It was referred to be filed. The Keeper of the Penitentiary submitted the following report for the month of June:

Prisoners received: males, 41; females, 67—total, 108.

Prisoners discharged: males, 32; females, 46—total, 78.

Prisoners escaped: male, 1—total, 1.

Prisoners remaining: males, 104; females, 126—total, 230.

Moneys received for convict labor, $63 75.

The report was placed on file. The Committee on Accounts, to whom was referred the statement of the Excise Commissioners of their transactions for the year ending May 1, 1862, reported that they compared said statement with the book of the Excise Commissioners, found on file in the City Clerk's office, as the law directs, and find that they granted 1,214 licenses, as follows:

First Ward	39	Twelfth Ward	92
Second Ward	74	Thirteenth Ward	45
Third Ward	30	Fourteenth Ward	72
Fourth Ward	42	Fifteenth Ward	34

all at $30 each, making $36,420; and that said licenses, excepting 44, were all granted on or before the 16th day of July, 1861, and that cash was paid to County Treasurer as follows: Aug. 23, 1861, $25,000; May 20, 1862, $11,420. Total, $36,420. The Jail Committee was authorized to enter into contracts with J. H. Douglas to supply the Jail with coal at $5 29 per ton; Kelsey & Loughlin, for wood at $5 87 per cord; and with Robert Wellwood for soft soap at 7½c. per bbl. The Penitentiary Committee was authorized to enter into contracts with the following named persons, for the supplies as named for the County Institutions: James Carman, fresh beef, 5¾c.; E. B. Morris, Indian Meal, $1 40 per 100 pounds; yellow corn meal, $1 20 do.; ship stuff, 75c. do.; wheat flour, $6 per barrel; straw, 55c. per 100 pounds; salt beef, 5c.; salt pork, 4¾c.; molasses, 35c. per gallon; salt, 60c. per bushel; rice, 6c. per pound; beans, $2 per bushel; coffee, 25c. per pound; peas 14c.; pepper, 20c.; mustard 16c.; saleratus, 5½c.; codfish, 3¼c.; potatoes, 50c. per bushel; hard soap, 8c.; vinegar, $2 50 per barrel. Wm. Lynch—Soft soap, 7½c. per barrel. Chapman & Pool—Kerosene oil, 30c.; fuid, 70c. Kelsey & Loughlin—Coal, $5 91. A resolution presented by Superintendent Cheever was adopted, directing the Commissioners of the Relief Fund to extend the same assistance to families of members of the Thirteenth Regiment New-York State Militia, as is extended to the families of Volunteers. The Board made three unsuccessful attempts to elect a Keeper of the Penitentiary, and then adjourned until the first Tuesday in August.

THE CAPITOLINE SOCIETY.—The Capitoline Association of this city, of whose delightful gatherings we have so frequently had occasion to speak, gave on Tuesday night, one of their "Musicals," at which a large number of gentlemen and ladies assisted. The entertainment was varied by musical exercises of every character, and was one of the most successful of the season.

CITY COURT CALENDAR FOR THIS DAY.—Nos. 30, 39, 12, 41, 42, 45, 46, 48, 49, 51, 52, 53, 56, 66, 61, 54, 56, 57, 65, 14.

NEW-JERSEY.

ARRIVAL OF THE BODY OF LIEUT. CHAMPIN, KILLED IN BATTLE.—The body of the late Lieut. Adolphus P. Champin, of Company F, Seventh Regiment New-Jersey Volunteers, who was instantly killed in the battle of Mechanicsville, on Thursday, June 26, arrived in this City, on Tuesday, and was conveyed to his residence, in Newark, on the afternoon of the same day. The deceased was a young man of great promise, and was much respected by all who knew him. He fell, while gallantly leading Company H, of the same regiment, the officers of which were disabled, and he placed in command. He was shot in the head, the ball entering the left cheek, passing through and coming out at the right ear, causing instant death.

THE BROKEN RAILROAD ACCIDENT—DEATH OF THE FIREMAN.—Thomas Page, the fireman on the train of the New-Jersey Railroad thrown off the track at Newark on Sunday evening, and who, with his father, the engineer, was so badly scalded by the escaped steam, died on Monday night at his residence, No. 52 Mercer-street, Jersey City, from the effects of his injuries. Deceased was about nineteen years of age; had been employed on the road since he was old enough to work, and was much esteemed, both by the Company and the employees. His funeral will take place this afternoon. Mr. Ralph Page, the engineer and father of deceased, still lies in a critical condition, but hopes are entertained of his recovery.

POCKET PICKED.—A gentleman residing in Newark, while at the depot of the Erie Railroad at Long Dock, Jersey City, yesterday morning, had his pocket picked of a wallet containing $160. The thief escaped.

MAD DOG.—The first mad dog of the season, in Jersey City, made its appearance yesterday afternoon in Montgomery-street. After plunging through the basement of the house occupied by Mr. Tessar, the rabid animal was killed by Policeman O'Donnell.

SOLDIERS' HOSPITAL.—At the present time there are but about thirty-five patients in the Soldiers' Hospital in Jersey City. A large number are, however, hourly expected, for whom ample accommodation has been provided.

LAW REPORTS.

The Recile Law Declared Constitutional.

IN COURT OF APPEALS—JUNE TERM, 1862.

MINNOT ET AL. VS. GOULD.

Patrick Mullins vs. The People.—SELDEN, J.—It must be conceded that the statute under which the respondent was convicted before the Justice, is peculiar in its provisions, and bears palpable evidence upon its face of having been framed without that care and caution which should attend the enactment of a penal law. The respondent insists that the act is unconstitutional. This, however, depends in a great degree upon the construction which is given to it. The first section, which simply authorizes all persons engaged in the manufacture and sale of mineral waters, &c., in bottles, with names or marks thereon, to record and publish such names or marks, is of course without objection.

The second section, as amended by the act of 1860, declares it to be unlawful, without the written consent of the owner, "to fill with mineral waters or other beverage, any such bottle so marked or stamped, or to sell, dispose of, buy or traffic in, any such bottle so marked or stamped by him, her or them, of such owner thereof," and imposes a penalty of fifty cents for every violation of the enactment. This section is very awkwardly framed, and, if literally construed, be entirely self-destructive. It could not, of course, have been intended to require the owner of the bottle to procure his own written consent to its use or sale. This would be absurd. The manufacturer for whose protection the statute was passed, might clearly fill his bottles, and sell them with their contents, without any written consent from himself. When he has done this, the purchaser becomes "the owner" of the bottle, and is therefore, according to the terms of the act, the party whose written consent is requisite to any subsequent use or sale. But his written consent could be no more essential to a sale by himself, than that of the manufacturer to the original sale, nor would it afford any protection to the manufacturer to require it. This, therefore, cannot be the true construction of the provision.

The only mode in which the statute can be made to effect the object of its enactment, is to interpret the word "owner" as referring exclusively to the original owner whose name or mark is upon the bottle, and the prohibition to extend only to a use or sale by, or a purchase from, a person other than such original owner. Thus interpreted the provision is entirely unobjectionable, and would accomplish precisely what the Legislature no doubt intended. But to warrant conviction and punishment under this section, the offence must be proved. The record in this case shows, that Mullins was convicted by the Justice of having violated the provisions of the act, in having "secreted" the bottles mentioned and described, upon his premises, and in having "sold, disposed of, bought or trafficked" in the bottles of the complainant. Now it is plain, that the secreting of bottles cannot subject a party to a conviction under the act. It authorizes the issue of a search warrant for the purpose of finding the bottles; but no other penalty is attached to the act of secreting. This act is not mentioned or attended to in the second section, which alone imposes the penalty. To justify the imposition of a fine or imprisonment, the party charged must be shown to have violated the provisions of this section. Mullins was convicted under those provisions of having "sold, disposed of, bought or trafficked in" the bottles of Knebel. The only evidence to support this conviction was the fact that one bottle with Knebel's mark was found at the bottom of a barrel of bottles upon his premises, and that he was a dealer in old bottles. If this could be supposed to prove either of the acts with which he was charged, it must be that of having unlawfully bought the bottle. It could not prove that he had sold or trafficked in the bottles of Knebel, as it had no tendency to show that he ever had any other in his possession than the one found. But how could the fact of the finding of this bottle upon his premises prove that he had bought of some person other than Knebel himself, which, upon our construction of the act, it was essential to establish? The presumption provided for in the first clause of the third section of the act does not arise, as that attached only upon proof of the use of the bottles for the sale of mineral waters, and of this there was no evidence. At common law the presumption from the facts proved would clearly be, that Mullins came lawfully into possession of the bottle. Hence, although in view of the interpretation which I have given to the statute there is no objection to its constitutionality, still I see no evidence in the case upon which the conviction can properly rest; and the only doubt which can exist, as to the propriety of its reversal by the Supreme Court, arises, as I think, upon the question whether the error can be corrected upon a certiorari issued, not pursuant to any statute, but under the established practice at common law.

An impression has prevailed to some extent in this State, founded upon several decisions of our late Supreme Court, that the power of review upon a common law certiorari is confined, to use the language of Judge Bronson, in the case of The People vs. The Judges of Dutchess, 23 Wend., 260, "to questions touching the jurisdiction of the subordinate tribunal and the regularity of its proceedings." "If," adds that learned Judge, "they neither exceed their powers, nor depart from the forms prescribed to them by law, their decision of the facts of the controversy before them is final and conclusive." This has never, I think, been very cordially assented to, and from my examination of the subject it seems to me clear that, at common law in that class of cases where the writ is used to remove a summary conviction had before a magistrate under a penal statute, the doctrine is erroneous. It is true, as has been often said, that such a certiorari removes only the words, and hence it seems to have been inferred that the evidence upon which the conviction was had would not be returned. But it will be found to have been conclusively settled at common law that the magistrate, in these cases, must insert the evidence in the record of the conviction itself, for the express purpose of enabling the Superior Court, upon a removal of the proceedings by certiorari, to determine upon the face of the conviction whether it was lawful; and although the Court would not interfere upon a question as to the mere weight of the evidence, yet a conviction without any evidence to support, has always, in the English Courts, been reversed or quashed as erroneous.

I will refer to a few cases to show that this has been the practice of those Courts. In the case of Rex vs. Theed, 3 Strs., 910, a conviction by a magistrate under a statute called the "Candle Act" was quashed, "because the evidence was not set out, it being alleged that the offence was fully and duly proved." The report of this case is very short, and does not show how the question was brought before the Court; but it was undoubtedly by certiorari, as is plainly to be inferred from a previous case against the same defendant, upon the same statute, (2 Lord Ray, 1375,) in which the conviction was sustained.

In a subsequent case, to wit, Rex vs. Lloyd, 2 Strs., 666, in which a certiorari was issued to a Court of Quarter Sessions to bring up the proceedings upon a removal of a clerk of the peace from office, a distinction was taken between a conviction and a mere order; and it was conceded both by the counsel (Mr. Strange) and the Court, that in cases of summary conviction, the record must contain the evidence, in order that the Superior Court may see that the conviction was legal. The Chief Justice said: "It is fully settled that in convictions the evidence must be set out; and if this was to be considered as a conviction, it therefore would be bad."

In Rex vs. Clarke, 8 Term, R. 220, the Court of King's Bench expressly held that upon a conviction of a person for killing game, without being duly qualified, the magistrate ought to state in the conviction the whole of the evidence for and against the defendant. The object of this requirement, and the extent to which the Court will go in reviewing the case upon the merits, is shown by the case of Rex vs. Smith, 8 Term, 594, 597. The defendant had been summarily convicted under a 2 statute of George III., against selling beaver by weight, before it had been baked for twenty-four hours; and this conviction was removed into the King's Bench, no doubt, by a common law certiorari, as that was the ordinary, if not the only mode of removing such conviction. It was there held, that where a power of conviction is given to a Justice of Peace, it is a judicial act, of the nature of a judgment, and that it is a judicial act of the party, that the Justice should state the facts upon which he adjudges the party to be guilty, that the Court may judge whether he has jurisdiction of the matter. The Independence Guard of the Second Regiment N. J. S. M., of which deceased was member, are making arrangements to inter the remains upon arrival here. Lieut. Champin died on Thursday afternoon. Lieut. Champin was 25 years of age, a young man of great promise, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He fell, while gallantly leading Company H, of the same regiment, the officers of which were disabled, and he placed in command. He was shot in the head, the ball entering the left cheek, passing through and coming out at the right ear, causing instant death.

[illegible] Mr. Conkling and Mr. Tweedy made speeches on the Anti-Slavery principles they wished incorporated, and Mr. Van Horn took ground against the measure. His arguments were forcible and created a decided impression. He expounded the difficulties and demonstrated the recklessness of such legislation—preferring to leave the matter in the hands of the President, to be exercised as he had heretofore done it.

But if Mr. Van Horn was happy while on his feet, he was proportionately unfortunate after he had sat down; for he was punished for some unrevealed sin by incurring the disapproval of Mr. Powell. This gentleman repeated the old jokes about unconstitutional legislation, and advanced some very poor arguments against a measure whose chief merit is its good intentions. He was followed by Mr. Cowan, whose speech I did not hear; but I am told that it assumed a Pro-Slavery tone that must have gratified immensely those conservative gentlemen with whom it has evidently his pleasure latterly to consort. Whether his constituents in Western Pennsylvania will be equally delighted may admit of doubt.

Legislation on this subject, as Mr. Van Horn well said, is fraught with many and grave difficulties. Non-legislation, on the other hand, is simple and effective. The Constitutional Commander-in-Chief of the armies has full military power to govern all the territory he controls, creating for that purpose Military Governors, as in Tennessee and South Carolina. The appointment of a civilian like Mr. Stanton may be questionable; but he has the power at any moment to obviate the difficulty by the bestowal of military rank. I submit that the whole matter is best left in his hands, with the passage of a joint resolution, perhaps, authorizing such appointments as a military measure, and defining the powers of the appointees.

THE WOUNDED.

About 600 of the wounded have already arrived in Washington. I have looked into one of the hospitals, and can bear unqualified praise to the comfort of its appointment and attendance. The poor fellows lay on comfortable cots, some reading, some sleeping, some talking, and all with an expression of cheerfulness on their faces. They were well attended by nurses of both sexes, and were as decidedly comfortable as their condition and the heat of the weather would allow.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, July 8.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) presented petitions in favor of the emancipation of the slaves.

On motion of Mr. CLARK, of New-Hampshire, (Rep.,) the confiscation bill, as returned from the House, was taken up.

Mr. CLARK moved that the Senate insist on its amendment and ask a Committee of Conference.

Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio, (Rep.,) moved that the Senate recede from the amendment and agree to the House bill.

Mr. TRUMBULL, of Illinois, (Rep.,) hoped the Senate would recede in that way. We should thus get a confiscation bill, not as efficient as some wish, but yet a good bill.

The question was taken on Mr. SHERMAN'S amendment, which was rejected by Yeas 14, Nays 22.

YEAS—Messrs. Chandler, Grimes, Hale, Harlan, Howard, King, Lane of Indiana, Lane of Kansas, Morrill, Sherman, Sumner, Trumbull, Wilkinson and Wright—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Anthony, Browning, Carlile, Clark, Collamer, Cowan, Davis, Dixon, Doolittle, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Harris, Henderson, Kennedy, McDougall, Nesmith, Powell, Rice, Simmons, Stark, Van Eyck, Willey, Wilson of Missouri—22.

ABSENT—Messrs. Bayard, Dixon, Howe, Latham, Pomeroy, Saulsbury, Thompson, Wade, Wilmot, Wilson of Massachusetts.

Mr. CLARK'S motion for a Conference Committee was then agreed to by yeas 28, nays 10.

NAYS—Messrs. Carlile, Davis, Kennedy, Lane of Indiana, Powell, Stark, Trumbull, Wilkinson, Wilson of Missouri, Wright.

Mr. WILSON of Indiana, (Rep.,) called up the resolution for the expulsion of Senator SAULSBURY.

Mr. TEN EYCK, of New-Jersey, (Rep.,) moved to refer the resolution to the Judiciary Committee.

Motion agreed to by yeas 31, nays 7.

NAYS—Messrs. Foster, Henderson, King, Nesmith, Powell, Trumbull and Wright.

On motion of Mr. FESSENDEN, of Maine, (Rep.,) the Tariff bill was taken up.

The Senate proceeded to consider the amendments reported by the Committee on Finance. The duty on spirits distilled from grain was raised from twenty-five to fifty cents per gallon. The duty on sheet iron was raised about 20 per cent. The duty on quinine was altered from 75 cents an ounce to 45 per cent. ad valorem; on opium prepared for smoking, 60 per cent. ad valorem. The proviso exempting rags, was struck out. On chicory the duties were reduced from four to two cents per pound.

Mr. PEARCE, of Kentucky, (Opp.,) offered an amendment to repeal the bounties on fishing vessels. Rejected, and the bill was reported to the Senate.

The amendments made in the Committee were concurred in and passed.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) introduced a bill to amend the act calling forth the militia for suppressing invasion, approved February 28, 1795.

Mr. FOSTER, of Connecticut, (Rep.,) introduced a bill supplementary of the act prohibiting the Slave-trade.

On motion of Mr. HALE, of New-Hampshire, (Rep.,) the bill to establish and equalize the grade line of officers in the navy was taken up.

Mr. GRIMES, of Iowa, (Rep.,) offered an amendment that officers of the navy have the same pay as the same rank of army officers, and no retired officers have any rations. Adopted.

On motion of Mr. GRIMES, the grade of Admiral was changed to Rear Admiral. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, July 8.

The House concurred in the report of the Conference Committee on the United States Note bill.

The House then resumed consideration of the bill to provide for the discharge of State prisoners and others; authorizing the Judges of United States Courts to take bail or recognizances to secure the trial of the same, and clothing the President with power to suspend the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus.

Mr. BLAIR, of Pennsylvania, (Rep.,) said that it had been said that the President has a right arbitrarily to imprison American citizens. He, (BLAIR,) however, would not discuss this question. This bill denied such a right, by the necessary imputation that the President does not possess this power.

Mr. COLFAX, of Indiana, (Rep.,) believed that the President has the right to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, and that the President had exercised the power fearlessly. He (COLFAX) would not vote for the bill if the gentleman's (BLAIR'S) interpretation were true, for to do so would impliedly censure the President.

Mr. MALLORY, of Kentucky, (Union,) wished to know if, as Mr. BUCHANAN had contended, the power to suspend the writ of habeas corpus resides in Congress, the power could be transferred to the President.

Mr. BINGHAM explained, remarking, in conclusion, the bill in that respect could do no harm.

Mr. SHERMAN, of R. I., (Rep.,) moved to lay the bill on the table.

Motion disagreed to, by yeas 59, nays 69.

Mr. BINGHAM, of Penn., (Rep.,) offered an amendment, making it lawful for the President, whenever in his judgment, by reason of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it, to suspend by proclamation, for the period of twelve months, or until the next meeting of Congress, the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus in any of the United States, or any part thereof, wherein the laws are by force opposed, and the Executive thereof obstructed; and whenever said writ shall be suspended, it shall be unlawful for any of the judges of the several courts of the United States, or any State, to allow said writ, anything in this act, or any other act, notwithstanding.

Under the operation of the previous question, this amendment was excluded, and the bill was passed.

(A synopsis of this bill was published last week.)

The House then passed the Senate bill defining the pay and emoluments of certain officers of the army and for other purposes.

One of the sections of the bill empowers the President to discharge any officer unfit for duty, or whose continued service would promote the public interests.

Another section bestows full citizenship on persons born abroad after one year's residence, on condition of honorably serving in the army.

On motion of Mr. ELIOT, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) the House insisted on its disagreement to the Senate's substitute for the Confiscation bill, and consented to a Committee of Conference.

The House concurred in the Conference report on the Civil Appropriation bill. Adjourned.

THE MILITARY HOSPITALS OF NEW-YORK.

How the Sick and Wounded Heroes of the War are Cared For—The Medical Department—Nurses; Professional and Voluntary—Plans of Public Relief and Private Beneficence, and How they are Administered—What the Sufferers Say.

Next to the success of our armies in the field, there is no subject in which the whole community should feel so much interest as in the welfare of the sick and wounded soldiers, who have sacrificed health and risked life and limb in the National cause; who went themselves, unbought, unsorred, feeble and prostrated, upon the sympathies of those whose gratitude and care it is their right to claim.

There are now in the various hospitals of this City alone hundreds of poor fellows, who, a few short months, or, it may be weeks ago, left their homes, sound and stalwart, hopeful and reliant, to do battle for the flag under which they were born, or to which they owed allegiance. They come back to us diseased, mutilated, overwrought in mind and body, demanding from all in whose power it may be to aid them every attention that time, thought and money can bestow. Much has been done to ameliorate the condition of the sufferers. The State and municipal authorities are vying with each other in efforts to secure and fit up suitable places for their reception; in appropriating needful funds for the maintenance of those places, and the provision of every comfortable and comfort that can possibly be wished. The highest medical talent is freely volunteered; private benevolence comes to the help of private endeavor; and, to a great extent, the duty that is owed to our country's bravely unfortunate defenders is generously fulfilled. Much though even yet remains for the charitable and kindhearted to do. The field is wide, the harvest really plenteous; and for the work that has to be performed the laborers are still too few. Thousands of people solace themselves in selfish luxury, without a thought of what is imperatively required of them in a crisis like the present. Their indifference, yet it is hoped, is more the want of thought than criminal neglect. But there are very many who forget the call, which, on behalf of the country, is hourly made upon them. It is not to be expected that they will all turn nurses or transform their houses into hospitals, but with sympathy and money, and the various means they have at their disposal, they can accomplish a great deal of good, and that at very little cost of trouble or personal annoyance. It is their duty, as far as they can, to lighten the labors of those who, in a purer spirit of self-sacrifice, devote their whole energies and resources to the cause; their duty to see that energies and resources thus devoted are not cramped for lack of beneficial means. It is our purpose to give a series of reviews of the principal hospitals now in operation in New-York; to show how they are managed, the objects they further, and to point out how the mission those in charge of them are seeking to accomplish, may be best promoted.

Altogether, within this City and the neighboring cities of Brooklyn and New-Jersey, there are these chief places of reception for the troops of disabled heroes that every transport brings us from the fatal battle-fields of the Peninsula:

IN NEW-YORK—The City Hospital, the Ladies' Hospital at Fifty-first-street, the Park Barracks, the New-England Soldier's Relief Association, No. 194 Broadway, David's Island, Bedloe's Island, Riker's Island, (not quite finished,) Governor's Island, the old Arsenal, (nearly completed,) Mother Jerome's Hospital, St. Luke's Hospital, and the Jews' Hospital.

IN NEW-JERSEY—The Jersey City Hospital.

IN BROOKLYN—The Brooklyn Hospital.

THE NEW-ENGLAND SOLDIERS' RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

The New-England Soldiers' Relief Association, situated at No. 194 Broadway, was organized on the 20th of March last. The object of the Association was to provide proper attention to the New-England sick and wounded soldiers as they passed through New-York from the seat of war to their homes; this, however, has not been adhered to. Soldiers of every State, if they need assistance, obtain it at the New-England Association. In many cases complete outfits have been given men, and in some cases money bestowed to help them on their journey. Although the organization was formed last March, the building for the reception of wounded soldiers was not ready till April 15. Since that time, to the present, the Association has relieved and cared for 6,300 men; of these the majority were wounded but slightly; indeed, unless under extraordinary circumstances, none but those who are comparatively speaking, slightly wounded, are received at the institution, as the members do not wish to make it a public hospital, but simply a resting place for the wounded soldier on his way home. If needed, as it invariably is, he is furnished with a shirt, boots, pants, in fact, any article of clothing he may be in need of, free of charge. Nine hundred Union prisoners were also received here; after being clothed from top to toe, under garments inclusive, five days' rations, packed up in a cloth bag, were given them, transportation provided, and they left for their homes. The greater number of them were Western men.

Thirty ladies, called "The Women's Ancillary Committee of the New-England Relief Association," have been divided into five weekly Committees, and take it in turns to attend the institution in the capacity of nurses. The same number of gentlemen have also been appointed, and act in conjunction with the ladies. During the present week, the following is a list of the Committees: Rev. Dr. Osgood, No. 154 West Eleventh-street; Wm. M. Evarts, Esq., No. 2 Hanover-street; Nehemiah Knight, Esq., No. 56 Park-place; Saml. R. Low, Esq., No. 33 Building-slip; Gen. P. M. Wetmore, No. 20 Pine-street; R. W. Stoughton, Esq., No. 72 Wall-street; Mrs. Samuel Osgood, No. 154 West Eleventh-street; Mrs. J. W. Post, No. 79 West Tenth-street; Mrs. A. Brookes, No. 22 West Thirty-first-street; Mrs. W. G. Sterling, No. 22 West Thirty-third-street; Miss Johnston, No. 1 East Thirtieth-street; Mrs. G. C. Collins, No. 33 West Twenty-fifth-street.

If necessary, this number can be doubled and trebled in a very short time by a number of ladies who have volunteered their services as nurses on the occasion of an emergency. The building is capable of holding three hundred men comfortably; but at a push, room could be made for five hundred; yesterday there were only sixty men left, the others having returned to their homes. At any moment the place may be crowded, as fresh arrivals are hourly expected.

Col. FRANK E. HOWE, the Superintendent of the Association, pointed out to our reporter a private of the Ninth Massachusetts Regiment, who had been shot through the top of his head. His name is DANIEL MCCARTHY, from Lowell. The poor fellow, on Monday evening, became delirious, and imagined that he was in the hands of the Secessionists. So violent was his behavior, attempting to throw himself from the window, that it took five men to hold and secure him; this, however, was not effected till he had bitten three severely. Yesterday he was somewhat calmer, having been assured that he was in the hands of friends. Passing along the row of beds, some feeble voice would cry, "Colonel."

"Well, what is it?"

"Can I go home to-day?"

"You're not strong enough."

"Oh, yes I am," with great energy.

So it was with many others, all had an intense desire to see the old homestead, not to stay there, oh, no! but simply an ardent, longing wish to see it again—and when recuperated return to their regiments.

Another poor fellow, a Sergeant in a New-Hampshire regiment, lost his leg at the battle of Fair Oaks; the amputation was not performed skillfully, so another operation will have to take place. His wife is attending him, and doing all she can to alleviate his sufferings. As his bed was approached he was lying upon his back, the surgeon being about to dress his wound. When asked how he felt, he answered, "pretty well."

The Medical Board of the Association is composed of the following well-known gentlemen: E. R. PEASLEE, M. D., President; LEWIS A. SAYRE, M. D., Vice President; W. R. DEMILLE, M. D., Secretary. And the following are the Visiting Surgeons and Physicians: Surgeons—F. J. Bumstead, M. D., No. 162 West Twenty-third-street; W. H. Donalds, M. D., No. 59 East Thirty-first-street; E. R. Peaslee, M. D., Fifth-Avenue Hotel; H. B. Sands, M. D., No. 64 East Twelfth-street; L. A. Sayre, M. D., No. 766 Broadway; W. H. Van Buren, M. D., East Twenty-second-street, corner Fourth-avenue; (One vacancy.) Physicians—Austin Flint, M. D., No. 74 Union-place; A. K. Gardner, M. D., No. 141 East Thirteenth-street; Horace Green, M. D., No. 13 Clinton-place; E. W. Lambert, M. D., No. 820 Sixth-avenue; B. W. McCready, M. D., No. 7 Ninth-street; A. Underhill, M. D., No. 44 East Twentieth-street; J. Worster, M. D., No. 120 Ninth-street. Alfred North, M. D., Resident Surgeon, Association Building, No. 194 Broadway.

Besides these there is a large corps of volunteer surgeons, whose names are on the books of the Association, that can be notified when any important case or an unlooked for arrival of a large number of wounded soldiers needs their presence.

Along the walls of the room is hung a number of verses from the Scriptures so that the wounded man can lie upon the bed and read them. A very capital idea, but likely to become tedious; if, a few pictures could be obtained—if only cheap engravings—they would please the eye and relieve many a weary hour,

THE GRAIN-SHOVELERS' STRIKE.

A Crusade Against Grain Elevators—The Laborers Refuse to Work where the Machine is Employed—Mass Meetings of the Merchants and Gentlemen.

About two thousand men have been employed in this City, in handling the immense quantity of grain that arrives here from the West. These men are called "strikers," "shovelers" and "trimmers." During the last season, there were introduced into the harbor two "grain elevators," which readily performed the work of many men, and did it much more rapidly. This season, five more elevators have appeared, so that altogether the machines in use will perform about two-thirds the work required. The men have therefore formed a Protective Union, and have resolved not to work in connection with the elevators, or for any man who employs them. They contend that the great dust which the elevators raise is injurious to life, and furthermore that the manner in which the ships are loaded often causes the cargoes to shift, the ships to roll and ultimately to sink and be lost.

THE GRAIN MERCHANTS' MEETING.

A meeting of the forwarders and receivers of grain was held yesterday at the Produce Exchange, to consider the matters at variance between them and the grain shovelers relative to the mode of delivery from the canalboats and barges. Mr. E. K. ALLEN was appointed Chairman, and stated the object that had called them together, after which some informal discussion took place, during which Mr. N. H. WOLFE read the following letter, received by him from the Grainmen's Protective Union:

NEW-YORK, July 8, 1862.

GENTLEMEN: Understanding that a meeting is to be held this day by the "Forwarders and Receivers, etc., to take into consideration the delivery of grain, whether by elevators or otherwise," we, the undersigned, composing the Committee of the Grainmen's Protective Society, desirous that no misapprehension should exist as to our objects or wishes, beg leave respectfully to state:

We do not ask or claim any increase of wages.

The usual rate of wages we have been earning for twenty years in all we ask.

We ask only that we be still allowed to work as we have heretofore, industriously, peaceably and faithfully, for ourselves, our families, and the Mercantile community. For the Committee,

JOHN MCSHANE, Chairman.

To N. H. WOLFE and others.

It appeared to be the unanimous sentiment of the meeting that the mode of discharging grain by elevators could not be dispensed with, and that the forwarders and receivers could not suffer themselves to be dictated to as to the manner in which their business should be done. A resolution to this effect was unanimously adopted, and a Committee of ten, consisting of the following gentlemen, was appointed to carry the resolution into effect: Messrs. E. K. Alburtis, E. H. Tompkins, Peter Rice, F. F. Sage, J. H. Mallory, Mr. Stillman, Capt. French, Mr. Williams, Mr. Witherspoon, H. Stutzer, Mr. Duncan and W. B. Barber.

On motion, the Committee were authorized to attend the meeting of the shovelers at Tammany Hall last evening, to ascertain their wishes, and see if an amicable arrangement of the difficulties with them could not be made.

THE GRAIN-SHOVELER'S MEETING.

The grain-shovelers met in very large numbers at Tammany Hall last evening—including, of course, the "trimmers" and "strikers," who are equally interested in moving the grain. The meeting was addressed by several gentlemen—among others, Mr. B. D. ALLEN, who has been 30 years in the business, and Mr. W. B. BARBER. The first speakers elicited the utmost enthusiasm. They denounced the owners of the elevators as capitalists and speculators, who were robbing the honest laborer of his due. They held forth the idea that if the grain-shovelers would only hold out, they would ultimately compel the withdrawal of the elevators, and the performance of all the work by hand. They disclaimed any idea of raising a mob, or of interfering with any who choose to work. The meeting particularly resolved to keep cool, quiet and orderly, and to refrain from anything unbecoming sober men. While their resolve to adhere to their determination was expressed with all the force which a thousand throats without laryngial defect could give, they at the same time manifested a determination to do everything peacefully and legally.

Mr. W. B. BARBER, who appeared on behalf of the Committee from the Merchants' meeting, was most cordially received. He fairly carried the meeting by storm by his praise of labor, particularly of Irish labor, his praise of Irish patriotism, &c. He said he should report to the Merchant's meeting that he understood them to intend to mind their own business, [cheers;] that they simply meant to make a choice as to who they should work for, [cheers;] that they had no intention to interfere with any others who choose to work, [cheers;] that they had no hard feelings against the merchants generally, but simply meant to do all they could legally, peacefully and soberly, to cause the disuse of the grain elevators. [Cheers.] In all these determinations he assumed they were perfectly right to do as they pleased, and no merchant could complain. If he were in their place he would count the cost of it and decide what was best for his family. He defended the New-York merchants from a charge of selfishness made by a previous speaker, and in conclusion, invited fifty men to call at his stores and get work on the morrow. He was loudly applauded throughout. He announced that there would be probably a Board of Grain Measurers formed for them. [Applause.]

The meeting finally adopted a formal constitution, resolving in the most emphatic terms to discountenance the use of the elevators. A large number of names was added to the roll, and the meeting dispersed in good order. The entire proceedings was conducted with the utmost good feeling and decorum. A more orderly assemblage has rarely congregated in Tammany Hall.

AMUSEMENTS.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—As the ballet of "Giselle" has been danced in this City a good many times, it is unnecessary to give the plot of "The Night Dancers," produced at NIBLO'S on Monday evening. The pieces are identical, except that one is danced throughout, whilst the other is half ballet, half musical drama. The musical dramatic part of the version done at NIBLO'S, is interpreted by Miss CAROLINE RICHINGS, principally; accessorarily by Mr. P. RICHINGS, Mr. JAMES DUNN, Mr. BOUCICAULT, and a chorus. Miss RICHINGS' share of the interpretation is, of course, performed with exquisite finish and harmonious wealth. There is nothing for her to sing that can ever become very popular, yet enough of graceful melody to satisfy any reasonable audience. The most attractive vocal chances she has are in the quaint little air, "Love me? Love me not?" and the finale at the end of the first act, with a variation of that air as refrain. She also sings a romance in the second act very nicely, and warbles brilliantly enough in the finale to bring the curtain down in triumph. Of the dancers, it is sufficient to say that Signorina GALLETTI is the choregraphic chief. As queen of the nocturnal waltzers, she surpasses the most bewildering of her previous achievements. Mlle. KAUSNIZ and Mons. TORNOFF support her very capably. The scenery of the new piece is—some of it—beautiful. With needful improvements in the funeful efforts and costumes of the chorus, and a little more orchestral drill, "The Night Dancers" should gather in moderately large crowds for a couple of weeks.

LAURA KEENE'S.—Miss MAGGIE MITCHELL is playing every evening in two characters, which are excellently well adapted to her peculiar talents as an actress, and which she, therefore, renders charmingly. The one is Frederick the Great, when a youth of twenty or thereabouts, in the comic drama of "The Young Prince;" the other is the heroine of a drama called "Katty O'Shea." As Frederick, Miss MITCHELL is amazingly lively and amusing; full of dash and spirit; and, with regard to looks, judiciously boyish, but captivating. In the other leading characters of the piece, Mr. A. H. DAVENPORT, Mr. J. W. COLLINS, Mr. J. H. STODDART, Mrs. GRAHAM, Miss NELSON, and Mrs. STODDART, are all very good; Mr. DAVENPORT, as Carl, the Miller, developing a remarkable turn for the broader kind of comedy.

WINTER GARDEN.—Professor Anderson has not gone upon the provincial tour which he contemplated yet. He has, instead, restored the Winter Garden to its pseudo-romantic splendors, and is now giving his famous prestidigitatorial performances as Wizard of the North, without any collusion with Prospero, or any other necromancer. The only change he has made is a reduction of prices, "to," as he phrases it, "suit the times." So long as the public desires entertainment, the times are sure to be suited.

GEORGE CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS.—GEO. CHRISTY, with a company of which he is "bones" and principal comedian, is drawing fine houses to No. 563 Broadway. The programme he offers is varied and redolent of fun.

WOOD'S MINSTRELS.—The opening of WOOD'S new hall, at No. 514 Broadway, on Monday evening, was an immense success. The success is pretty

MR. FOWLER'S SOIREE MUSICALE.—At Dodworth's Hall, this evening, Mr. J. C. Fowler, blind musical prodigy, will give his popular annual soiree musicale. Mr. Fowler is a native of this city, who will, however, have the professional aid of Miss MOZART, Mr. G. W. Clark and Mr. MEACHAM. The programme of concert to be sung and played is extensive, varied, and attractive, and will doubtless be fully appreciated by a large and fashionable audience.

DR. WM. H. GEDGE—Dear Sir: In February, 1861, I was afflicted with the sugar diabetes, and for five months I passed more than two gallons of water in twenty-four hours. I was obliged to get up as often as ten or twelve times during the night, and in five months I lost about fifty pounds in weight. During the month of July, 1861, I procured two bottles of Constitution Water, and in two days after using it I experienced relief, and after taking two bottles I was entirely cured, soon after regaining my usual good health. Yours, truly,

[illegible] Hudson will this step; [illegible] Department went to the Rest from his city and recently returned and went to Washington, where he [illegible] daily in attend ance. Recently a dispatch was sent from the Co-thorities in Washington relative to the return of his property and person, as they had ascertained that he contributed to the outfit of the rebel privateer Sumter. The dispatch was received, but the property had all been disposed of, just in the nick of time. It seems that some overzealous patriots were guilty of the unpatriotic act, and in this manner the person in question became acquainted of the Government dispatch, and immediately telegraphed to his agent in this city to dispose of all his property on the instant. He also intercepted, it is said, the reply sent to Washington."

—The Wheeling Intelligencer says: "Mrs. Hay-mond and Mrs. Neeson, of Fairmont, about a month ago started on horseback for Richmond, old Buttons-ville and Wheeling, to see their husbands, who are in the rebel service. This was the second trip for Mrs. Haymond. They safely accomplished their long journey, and on Tuesday last got as far back toward home as Philippi, where they were arrested and brought to a halt by a detachment of Gen. Wilkinson's command. We had passes from our commanding officer at Buttonville, but the guard would not answer, and despite all their efforts they were detained. Gen. Kelley was telegraphed to for orders concerning them, and he very promptly and very properly ordered that their horses' heads should be turned back on the road whence they came, and the ladies passed Richmond-ward again beyond our lines."

—Capt. U. H. Collis, of the Zouave d'Afrique, a company that has acted as the body guard of Gen. Banks, and done important service, has been authorized by Gov. Curtin to raise a regiment. The men are to be uniformed in a manner similar to the men of Capt. Collis' Company, and to be officered by experienced soldiers.

—Maj.-Gen. Lew. Wallace arrived in Indianapolis on Wednesday night, July 3, to visit his relatives and friends. The General looks well and fully capable of enduring any exposure or dangerous duty that may be assigned him.

—Col. J. M. Gosline, of the Ninety-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, was not killed, but dangerously wounded in the battle of Gaines' Hill.

OBITUARY.

—Major Nathan Beekes Boswell, who was killed while commanding, and at the head of his regiment, in the battle before Richmond, on Friday, 27th June, was born in 1816. He was the grandson of Hon. William Boswell, a Judge of the Supreme Court of New-Jersey for twenty-two years, and the son of Gen. Lambert Boswell, who was Major of the Twenty-fifth Infantry in the war of 1812, and afterward Clerk of the Supreme Court of New-Jersey, and Adjutant-General of the State. His mother was Miss Lydia Beekes, a great-daughter of Rev. William Treat, Chief Justice of Pennsylvania and afterward of New-Jersey, and the founder of Trenton. He was appointed Second Lieutenant in the Fifth Infantry in 1836, promoted to a first lieutenancy in 1840, distinguished at Monterey and Churubusco, promoted to a captaincy in 1847, brevetted Major in 1848, for gallant and meritorious conduct at El Molino del Rey, in 1847, and appointed Major of the Third Infantry 26th September, 1861. He carried the first United States flag into the City of Mexico, was a brave and accomplished officer and gentleman, and was much beloved in his regiment. He was brother-in-law to Gen. Sedgwick, and so related by marriage to Gen. McClellan. He leaves a widow and four children. His brother, Capt. William Henry Boswell, of the Tenth Infantry, is now in New-Mexico.

Great Wrecking Operation.

From the Boston Commercial Bulletin.

T. P. WELLS, Esq., of this city, has just completed a contract with the Government, by which he agrees to raise the vessels sunk at the Gosport Navy-yard and in Hampton Roads. The value of property sunk upon which he proposes to operate, amounts to over a million of dollars, and consists of the following vessels:

	Guns.		Guns.
Pennsylvania	120	Congress	50
Delaware	84	Plymouth	22
Columbus	80	Germantown	22
Raritan	50	Cumberland	24
Columbia	50	Dolphin	4
United States	50	Merrimac	12

Two new rebel steamers—water-boat, powder-boat. The latter, with steamers, it will be recollected, were planted for an, and were scuttled and sunk at the Navy-yard, in great haste; they now lay in about thirty feet of water, and it is thought can easily be raised. The Cumberland lays in eleven fathoms of water, and it is the intention of the contractor to raise her by means of her whole ships of four hundred tons each, which will be partially submerged by being first filled with water, and then after attaching to the sunken ship, will, by means of the rise of tide and use of steam pumps, bring her up. It will be recollected the Government was placed with eight hundred tons of iron, all of which, it is expected, will be recovered. The Congress and Cumberland each had two extra shaft, containing respectively $25,000 and $10,000 in specie, which will, without doubt, be recovered by means of diving apparatus.

The contract is given on a guarantee, by the contractor, of raising the vessels before the end of the work; he will employ something like 200 men, whose wages will be twenty dollars, who will descend to the sunken ships in the Wells & Gowen submarine armor. Some of the vessels as are not raised will be blasted with gunpowder, and all the material that is of value recovered.

The contractor is the same party who raised the steamer Erie from Lake Erie in 1861, and has been engaged in other submarine operations. We understand he is to commence operations at once, and is to receive 40 per cent. salvage from the Government, in the value of all property recovered.

VIII. No authorization will be granted to officers who have been discharged from the volunteer service for incapacity or misconduct, or who have resigned under charges.

IX. Whenever any person, duly authorized, shall have enrolled the names of ten or more volunteers he will transmit the roll, with a copy of his authority certified, as provided in paragraph VII, to the Regimental Commander of his District, with a request that transportation be provided for such Volunteers to the camp; and a certificate, on his honor, that they are, to the best of his knowledge, able-bodied men, between the ages of 18 and 45 years; that he has the written consent of the parents or guardians of such as are minors, for their enlistment, and that so far as he can ascertain, they are free from any defect that would incapacitate them for military service. Fraud or premeditated deception in the certificate will disqualify the person making it from holding any position in the Volunteer forces of the State.

X. On receiving the application and certificate as provided in the foregoing paragraph, the Regimental Commander will furnish transportation for such volunteers to his regimental camp, where they will be examined by the Surgeon, mustered into service, and provided with quarters, subsistence and clothing.

XI. Officers of the several departments connected with the organization of volunteers, will not recognize the right of any person claiming to be engaged in organizing a company, to make a requisition for transportation, quarters, subsistence or clothing, or incur expenses for any purpose whatever, without proper evidence of appointment of such person as herein provided for. Such evidence may be furnished by the production of the original authorization from the Governor, or a copy thereof, properly certified by any Justice of the Peace, Notary Public, or Commissioner of Deeds.

XII. The Adjutants will act as mustering officers for the several regiments, whose duty it will be to muster in volunteers as they are presented, and enter their names on lists designating the persons having authority to enroll them. On the completion of a company, the names will be transferred to a muster roll, one copy of which will be forwarded to the Adjutant-General of the army, at Washington, one to the Adjutant-General of this State, and a third retained by the commanding officer of the company.

XIII. On the completion of ten companies of the minimum standard in any Regimental District, they will be formed into a regiment, to be organized as follows:

Minimum.	Maximum.
830 Company Officers and enlisted men.	1010 Company Officers and enlisted men.
1 Colonel.	1 Colonel.

Field and company officers will be mustered into service as follows: Colonel, entire regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel, four companies; Major, six companies, Captain, one company; First Lieutenant, one-half a company; Second Lieutenant, 50 men. The regimental staff will be mustered in on the completion of the regiment, except the Adjutant, Quartermaster and Surgeon, who will be mustered in at the commencement of a regimental organization, as provided in paragraph V. No officer will, however, be mustered into the service except on the order of the Commander-in-Chief, which will be granted on application, accompanied by the certificate of the mustering officer that he has the requisite number of men or companies actually mustered.

XV. The chiefs of the several State military departments will from time to time make requisition on the proper officers of the General Government for the arms and accoutrements, camp equipage, uniforms, clothing and medical supplies necessary for the force to be organized in pursuance of these orders.

XVI. Requisitions will be made on the State Departments as follows: By Regimental Commanders, on the Quartermaster-General, for transportation passes to be issued to recruiting officers; by Regimental Quartermasters, approved by the Regimental Commanders, on the Quartermaster-General, for uniforms, clothing and camp equipage; by the Regimental Commanders on the Commissary-General of Ordnance, for arms and accoutrements; and by the Regimental Surgeons on the Surgeon-General, for medical supplies. Requisitions in all cases to be transmitted through the Adjutant-General's Department, for the approval of the Commander-in-Chief.

XVII. Subsistence will be furnished on contracts made by the United States mustering and disbursing officers, who are requested to issue proposals therefor in each of the several regimental districts.

XVIII. Expenses incurred for subsistence, quarters, &c., previous to the transfer of recruits to a regimental camp, will be paid by the United States mustering and disbursing officers, in conformity with the provisions of General Orders No. 19 War Department, 1861.

XIX. The pay of officers will commence from the date of their muster into the service; that of privates from the date of their enrollment. In addition, the War Department has made the following provisions in the way of bounty and advance pay:

THE RESPONSE OF CONNECTICUT.

NEW-HAVEN, Tuesday, July 8.

The largest meeting ever held in New-Haven assembled here this evening to respond to the call for volunteers. Music Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. Commodore ANDREW H. FOOTE presided over the meeting, though still disabled by his wounds and unable to walk. Speeches were made by Senator Dixon, Gov. Buckingham, Rev. Dr. Bacon, Hon. Alvin P. Hyde, Hon. Thomas H. Bond, Rev. Dr. Nadall, Hon. George F. Trumbull, Hon. Chas. Chapman, Capt. Hunt, of the army, and others. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one, and the people are thoroughly aroused. Connecticut will not be behind her sister States in responding to the President's call for troops.

INDIANA AND OHIO.

CINCINNATI, Tuesday, July 8.

Gov. MORTON's call for eleven more regiments and six batteries of artillery, although published yesterday morning, was responded to in a most hearty and confident manner, by prominent and influential representatives from over thirty counties. Gov. MORTON and Hon. W. P. THOMPSON addressed a large meeting at Indianapolis last week.

The organization of new regiments in Ohio will commence immediately. Camps are being established in different parts of the State for their reception. Recruiting has materially improved in the last few days. Over eight hundred private, on furloughs, have reported at Camp Chase, and more are expected every day.

MASSACHUSETTS AND THE CALL.

BOSTON, Tuesday, July 8.

Gov. ANDREW and Adjt.-Gen. SCHOULER have prepared and published the military apportionment of the State, designating the number of men each city and town shall furnish to make up 15,000 men, the proportion Massachusetts is expected to send to the field under the call for 300,000 more volunteers.

PENNSYLVANIA ANSWERS THE CALL.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA MILITIA,
HARRISBURGH, July 7, 1862.

GENERAL ORDER No. 28.—In organizing the quota required from Pennsylvania under the late call of the President of the United States, it is ordered:

First—Troops will be accepted by squads or companies, as hereinafter indicated, and will as rapidly as possible be organized into companies and regiments.

To be commissioned a First Lieutenant, from twenty-five to forty men must have been furnished as above. To be commissioned a Second Lieutenant, from fifteen to twenty-five men must have been furnished as above.

Third—Transportation to the Central Dépôt, Camp Curtin, will be furnished on application in person or by mail, to Capt. R. J. Dorsey, U. S. A., Superintendent of the Volunteer Recruiting Service for Pennsylvania, at Harrisburgh, to whom report must be made.

Fifth—Squads will be organized into companies, at Camp Curtin, as rapidly as possible. The companies are formed into regiments, field officers appointed and commissioned by the Governor, and the regiments immediately placed at the disposal of the War Department.

Sixth—As a reward for meritorious conduct, and, also, to secure valuable military experience, appointments of field officers will be made (except under peculiar circumstances) from men now in active service. By order of A. G. CURTIN,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

A. L. RUSSELL, Adjutant-General.

THE RESPONSE OF OHIO.

PATRIOTIC PROCLAMATION OF GOV. TOD.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, COLUMBUS, O., July 3, 1862.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: Another appeal to your patriotism has become necessary. The enemies of our Government, now assembled at Richmond in hostile array, largely outnumber any disposable force at the President's command.

The army under Gen. McCLELLAN has been driven back, merely by the force of overwhelming numbers rapidly concentrated there.

Additional troops are alone necessary to hold the important positions already gained, and speedily crush the rebellion at all points.

Liberally and gallantly as Ohio has heretofore responded to the calls of the President, he has ever been assured that we had but to know that further aid was needed from us to insure a prompt answer to any further calls he might make upon us. This knowledge we now have, and the call has also been made.

And now, citizens of Ohio, one and all, shall the call be responded to? Something whispers me that, with one voice, you say it shall be answered.

Arouse, then, and let every man be able to say that he has done his duty.

There is work for all to do. The aged can stimulate the young; the wealthy contribute to the wants and necessities of the destitute; and the ladies, who have already done so much, and whose kind hearts will prompt them to the continuance of their good work, can encourage, by their noble example, both old and young in the performance of the great duty. What is wealth, or even life, worth, if, to preserve either, we have to confess to the world that we are unable to maintain our glorious Government?

Gallant and worthy recruiting officers for the organization of new regiments and the filling up of those already in the field, will be appointed in all portions of the State, and specific instructions given to them.

[illegible]

[illegible] the press from them. On my return to Harrisburgh, on the morning of the 4th inst., I received a letter from Gov. BURTON, asking that his name be signed to the memorial, and expressing, for the people of Delaware, his cordial approval of the offer, and his willingness to cooperate to any extent in all just measures for the safe and prompt prosecution of the war for the suppression of the rebellion.

The letter of Gov. BURTON was immediately transmitted to the War Department, and there is no doubt his name has been appended to the memorial, and that the public will be so informed.

Failing to reach Gov. KIRKWOOD, I united in a dispatch with Gov. MORGAN, of New-York, to Messrs. CAMERON and HARLAN, Senators from Iowa, asking them to call at the War Department, and, if they were willing to assume the responsibility, to sign the name of the Governor to the memorial. I have a letter from them in which they say they could not at the Department obtain the consent of the Governor, as they knew it would meet his entire approbation, but that the memorial had already been published. There can be no doubt the Governor of Iowa will signify his approbation. I am, very respectfully, yours, &c.,

A. G. CURTIN.

Why Not Arrange a General Exchange of Prisoners?

To the Editor of the New-York Times.

When are our prisoners of war to be exchanged? The spell which has paralyzed the authorities at Washington to the postponement of all things until after the great contest at Richmond, has at length been dissolved. Not by the clarion trump of glorious victory! but, alas, by a retreat, which, though we hope may be temporary, brings with it the wail of thousands of hearts bereaved of those dearest and most prized. Throughout the breadth and depth of this once happy land, the electric chord of sympathy in a common sorrow will bind together the people in a Union of States, and a union of hands, to drive back the wily foe and avenge the sacrifice. Doubtless the call of the President for reinforcements will be promptly met, but would it not be well for the authorities to remember, when asking this at the hands of the country, that the perils of this war are not alone those of the battle-field, but, if taken prisoner, those of a felon's cell; and that while thousands of loyal hearts may be ready to peril life in defence of everything they hold most dear, there is a horror beyond from which nothing can guard them but a definite plan for the general exchange of prisoners of war, instituted at once, so that if captured they may know that they will experience its benefits.

And this, while it would give assurance to those about to enter the lists, how great the relief it would bring to those thousands of sorrowing hearts who mourn the almost living death of those brave ones now languishing in the fetid cells of Southern prisons, and who have deserved better than this of their country.

A little less than a year ago and the first tornado of the struggle entered the hearts of our people. Many buried their beloved, and time, with its gentle touch, may have soothed the pain, in the thought that they were at rest, having met the fate most dear to a brave man—death upon the battle-field in defence of a glorious cause.

But now has it been with those whose daring led them to the front and past the front—who, stripped of everything, have lingered in the prisons of Richmond and Charleston weeks, months, now a year gone by, in vain longing and expectation that the Government for whom all was sacrificed, whose very existence, for the time, was due to the prompt patriotism of these men, who waited for no second call, but sprang to arms at the first echo of the guns fired at Sumter?

From time to time, a few have been paroled to plead the cause of their fellow prisoners, and secure a general exchange. But in vain. Mothers, wives and children, they too must suffer the daily and hourly torture of fearing that those they love will fall victims to the malicious tactics of their barbarous captors at whose mercy they are, hostages for every pirate, bridge-burner or guerrilla. Even now, Capt. AUSTIN, of Kentucky, a brave officer, long in confinement, from the effects of which he has already lost one eye; and Capt. O'MEARA, whose name has a National significance second only to CORCORAN, have been placed in close and solitary confinement at Salisbury, N. C., as hostages for the guerrillas; and the public may rest assured that, as certainly as these criminals meet the fate they merit, just so surely our men will be hung two to one, not of equal rank, but the bravest and the best, that it may strike terror to the hearts of our people, and restrain the hands of our Government.

When will the powers at Washington perceive that so long as these cards are held by the enemy they will play them regardless of consequences? A system of general exchange of prisoners must and will be demanded by the people as a condition of their coming forward at this crisis. HUMANITY.

Death of Col. Perry—Resolutions of His Fellow-Officers.

FORT PULASKI, Ga., Saturday, June 21, 1862.

At a meeting of the officers of the Forty-eighth N. Y. S. Volunteers, convened at Fort Pulaski on the 21st of June, 1862, the following expression of feeling was made touching the death of Col. JAMES H. PERRY, who was taken from us suddenly by a stroke of apoplexy on the 10th inst., while engaged in the discharge of duty.

We meet together under trying circumstances. He who was our leader has been stricken down suddenly in the pride of his strength, and is gone forever. Possessed in an eminent degree of those qualities which make a successful commander, he had won our respect and confidence; a man of kindly feelings, he had won our love. We are overwhelmed with sorrow at this our great bereavement. We have lost a brave commander, an able counselor and a kind friend. But while we feel deeply our own loss, we would not forget to extend the hand of sympathy to the family and friends who mourn with us over this dispensation of Providence; and we trust that they, with us, may be consoled by the knowledge that he has proven himself a devoted servant of his country—a patriot, a man and a Christian. He has gone from us, but his influence will long be felt; and we hope that with him as our example, we may continue to labor in the cause of our beloved country with greater earnestness and fidelity.

LOTS CAST FOR HOSTAGES AGAIN.

Capt. J. P. McIVOR, of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, writes as follows to Capt. KIRKER:

SALISBURY, N. C., June 21, 1862.

Capt. J. B. Kirker:

DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 18th, and Lieut. CONSOLLY's of the 25th, have been received by the Colonel. He has been anxiously expecting the one you were to have written the following day. There is nothing of interest to communicate. Our existence here is rather monotonous. We, however, manage to vegetate by procuring, in addition to our rations, some indispensable articles which the market here furnishes, at prices that make fearful inroads into our already dilapidated exchequers. Our time is spent in playing ball, cards, chess, &c., walking, smoking, snoozing, philosophizing, speculating, criticising, and—like Micawber—waiting for something to turn up. There are confined here 44 officers, and about 600 non-commissioned officers and privates. Among the former [illegible]

THE WAR IN ALABAMA.

GEN. BUELL'S ARMY.

Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette.

TUSCUMBIA, Ala., Monday, June 23.

The railroad bridge which spanned the Tuscumbia Creek at this place, and which was destroyed by the rebels, is now being rebuilt, and until this is done, it is to be presumed that the Sixth Division of BUELL's army will remain at or near this place, though several regiments have already advanced to support bullfrogs at two points farther East some stations to eighteen miles distant.

This Tuscumbia Creek is a remarkable stream, being made up entirely of two enormous springs, both within half a mile of each other, and of the bridge, and running into the Tennessee River some three miles from its source; and yet this short stream has a sufficient volume of running water, and a sufficient fall with all to drive a continuous number of spindles and looms, all of which, some day, I doubt not, will be done. As it is, one dilapidated old flouring mill is kept at work grinding the corn meal on which the entire population now subsist.

Immense plantations, filled by large gangs of slaves, now cover this entire stretch of valley lands; the cotton crop of last year lies around in great abundance, and the circumstances under which some of it is owned, make it very tempting to the true and earnest Union soldier. Yesterday a foraging party from Gen. GARFIELD's Brigade discovered distant traces of the whereabouts of a lot of our thousand bales of cotton which had been submitted, by a noted secessionist, to the Southern Confederacy. Capt. RAVEN PIUMM, Quartermaster, reported the fact to Gen. GARFIELD, commanding, and the same has been forwarded to headquarters of Gen. BUELL, in hopes that measures may be immediately taken to secure so much of the lot as may be found. Without doubt this is but a sample of what may be found in the way of contraband property. Indeed, it seems to your correspondent that a mistaken policy governs our movements as an army. Here we are, surrounded by an inveterate and determined a set of rebels as can be found in the entire South. They have given their property without stint to inaugurate and carry forward their rebel idea. They have all combined in immense quantities of property, enough to defray the expense of feeding the entire army of Gen. BUELL. Be determined are these rebels to sustain their cause at all hazards, that they boldly say to our Generals that all of these immense corndoles are designed to sustain the Confederate army another year. These corndoles are immense. On every plantation where heretofore only cotton has been produced, now the negro gangs are made to hoe corn instead, so that the rebels may not fail of a supply of bread.

And yet we are obliged to feed our animals on short rations and to pay from Northern loyal pockets not only the expense of transporting, at great disadvantage, the supplies for the men, but the poor soldier is compelled to pay (if he buys) an enormous price for any luxury he may desire to obtain. Butter, 40 cents; eggs, 25 cents per dozen; pies, 25 cents each; dressed pig, 25 cents per pound; chickens, 50 cents, and poor at that, are moderate samples of prices charged, and paid for in good Treasury notes.

We had got the railroad in fair running order from Corinth to this place, and were running trains daily from Iuka to the bridge opposite this town, by which means supplies reached us by wagon and rail from Eastport around the shoal water, now very low, between Florence and Eastport; but two nights ago the rebels, with whom we have been laboring so kindly, tore up the track, causing our only available locomotive to run off, so much disabled, that a new one must be had before we get any more transportation by rail.

How much good is to come from rebuilding and restocking this Memphis and Charleston Railroad, while to hold it so we use it, with our present kind policy, involves the necessity of a guard for almost every rail, remains to be seen. Especially is this questionable when such points as Memphis, Corinth, Iuka, Tuscumbia, Decatur, Huntsville and Chattanooga, can be held with so much more certainty and ease, each of which points is supported by means of transportation running Northward. It may be found, indeed, that our tedious Summer labor has been expended upon a railroad of no great value to us as a line, and yet of great account to the rebels, should they by any means regain possession of even parts of it.

The Divisions of Gens. CRITTENDEN and McCOOK crossed the Tennessee River, three days ago, at the very place where, in 1814, Gen. JACKSON crossed with his army, en route to New-Orleans.

An important court-martial for the Sixth Division has been sitting for seven days past without adjourning for an hour except meals and sleep. Gen. GARFIELD, being the ranking officer in the division, is the President of the Court, and proves to be as much at home there as in the Chair of President of his own lovely institution in Ohio, or in the more exciting business of whipping HUMPHREY MARSHALL in Eastern Kentucky.

No reliable information has as yet reached the army respecting the whereabouts of BRAXTON BRAGG or his army.

Gen. BUELL's headquarters still remain on the south bank of the Tennessee, near Florence.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Sunday, June 29, 1862.

There is a report circulating that Col. TURCHIN, in marching with the Nineteenth Illinois from Winchester to Bellefonte, was compelled to resort to some acts of terrible severity. He was repeatedly fired upon by rebel bushwhackers, and several of his men were slightly wounded. Two or three of the scoundrels were made prisoners; but the cowardly work continuing, Col. TURCHIN lost all patience, burned nine houses belonging to secession sympathizers, and hung two of the guerrillas upon the limb of a tree.

Col. TURCHIN's advanced guard reached Bellefonte on Thursday. He was on his way to join Col. SILZ at Battle Creek, where he undoubtedly is at the present time.

Nothing new has taken place in the vicinity of Huntsville, and since Capt. LOMBIS mounted one of his "Parrots," swung it upon a pivot in such a way that it can deal death in any direction at a moment's notice, and sent it with the car patrolling up and down the railroad track, the rascals who practice firing upon our trains keep themselves remarkably scarce.

The health of the troops here is remarkably good.

Col. LYLE has resumed command of the Seventeenth Brigade.

Maj.-Gen. BUELL arrived in Huntsville yesterday, and was serenaded last night at the Huntsville Hotel.

The Troubles in Utah.

PACIFIC SPRINGS, Utah, Monday, July 7.

The Indians have taken all the stage stock from three or four stations east of the Rock Ridge, thirty-two head in all, killed two emigrants and took their stock. They also took 140 horses from Californians at Yo Springs.

A war with the Cheyennes, Snakes, and two or three bands of Sioux, appears inevitable. There are only 500 troops on the whole line, which are not enough for its protection.

Arrivals in the City.

Gen. O. M. Mitchel, and his son, Capt. E. N. Mitchel, of the U. S. Army, arrived from the West yesterday afternoon, and are stopping at the St. Nicholas Hotel. Dr. John N. Garner and Dr. Charles E. Sanborn, of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, and Major C. W. Barton, of the U. S. Army, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

Edwin Forrest, from Philadelphia, is at the Metropolitan Hotel.

G. Caloocoresses, a Grecian by birth, Commander in the United States Navy, is stopping at the Everett House.

Lieut. Foxhall A. Parker, of the United States Navy; Hon. Russell Sage, of Troy; Dr. Dunster and Dr. L. Cox, of the United States Army, and G. F. Winslow and Jas. A. Burden, of Troy, are at the Fifth-avenue Hotel.

Pierce Butler, Miss Butler and maid, and Mrs. Agnier and servants, from Philadelphia, are at the New-York Hotel.

Capt. Gadsden, of the Arago, and S. H. Gradley, of Chicago, are at the Irving House.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—About 6 o'clock last evening, a woman named ISABELLA KEARNEY, residing at No. 129 West Twenty-seventh-street, attempted to commit suicide, by taking laudanum. Shortly after taking the fatal drug, she was discovered and taken to the Sixteenth Precinct Station-house. Her condition becoming every moment more critical, she was removed to Bellevue Hospital. It is not expected she can recover. No cause is assigned for the consummation of the act.

The correspondence relative to the delivery of the ship Jeff. Davis to the American authorities has been published, from which it appears that Minister Adams did not recede from the position first assumed by him on the subject.

Lord Brougham explained his speech in the House of Lords on American affairs, that he merely wished, as fellow-citizens, to remonstrate with the Americans on the issues of the civil war. Close it over as they might, the war threatened fatal results to the character of the American people.

The disposable correspondence relative to the Trinity St. Pierre is lengthy. Mr. Adams contends that the ship and cargo were condemned, and demands their restitution. Russell employed legal arguments against condemning that Capt. Wheaton course would prudent with the Prize Courts of the country. Adams rejoined with the contention that the detention the detention of the ship stood on the essential principles of law and equity. America expected a different decision, and will be made wise by the past, and will take precautions in the future to better protect her. THE NEW CALL FOR TROOPS.

Important Order from Adjutant-Gen. Hillhouse.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW-YORK, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, ALBANY, July 7, 1862.

GENERAL ORDER No. 51.—I. The President of the United States having accepted from the several States an additional force of 300,000 volunteers, to serve for three years or for a period not to exceed the duration of the war, the quota of this State will be organized as herein provided, and for the infantry arm of the service.

II. The Senatorial Districts, as at present arranged, are hereby constituted Regimental Districts, and a Regimental Camp will be formed in each at the places hereinafter designated, where the recruits raised in such district will assemble. In districts where there are no barracks or other convenient quarters, tents will be used. Persons holding authorizations to raise companies under General Orders No. 31, will be considered as attached to the Regimental District in which they reside, and will take their recruits to the camp established in such district.

III. The territory comprising the first seven Senatorial Districts is hereby excepted from the provisions of paragraph II.; and persons organizing brigades or regiments within such territory, may select such locality therein for their camps, as shall to them appear most advantageous, subject to the approval of the Commander-in-Chief. All persons holding authorizations to raise companies, except batteries or battalions of artillery, within said territory, will forthwith attach themselves to some regimental organization, and transfer their recruits to the camp of such regiment.

IV. A commander will be appointed for each regiment by the Commander-in-Chief, to be commissioned on its completion. Such commanders are hereby invested with all the powers, and will perform all the duties now appertaining to Commandants of Depots, and they are personally directed to make daily reports of their progress to the Adjutant-General of the State. They will also be held accountable for the due observance of the rules and regulations which may be established for the government of the several camps.

V. In addition to the regimental commanders, an Adjutant, Quartermaster and Surgeon will be appointed by the Commander-in-Chief, (the two first-named officers on the nomination of the regimental commanders,) and mustered into the service. The Adjutant in each case to act as mustering officer, and in the performance of this duty he will be governed strictly by the provisions of paragraph XII.

VI. Each company will be organized as follows:

VII. On the application of persons proposing to enroll companies, approved by the Regimental Commander of the District, the Governor will, at his discretion, issue a certificate authorizing such party to enroll volunteers, and omitting the person to whom it is issued to receive a commission as Second Lieutenant whenever he shall have enrolled not less than thirty men who shall have passed muster; to a commission as First Lieutenant for not less than forty men, and to a commission as Captain when he shall have recruited eighty-three men or over.

VIII. No authorization will be granted to officers who have been discharged from the volunteer service for incapacity or misconduct, or who have resigned under charges.

IX. Whenever any person, duly authorized, shall have enrolled the names of ten or more Volunteers, he will transmit the roll, with a copy of his authority certified, as provided in paragraph VII, to the Regimental Commander of his District, with a request that transportation be provided for such Volunteers to the camp; and a certificate on his honor, that they are, to the best of his knowledge, able-bodied men, between the ages of 18 and 45 years; that he has the written consent of the parents or guardians of such as are minors, for their enlistment, and that so far as he can ascertain, they are free from any defect that would incapacitate them for military service. Fraud or premeditated deception in the certificate will disqualify the person making it from holding any position in the Volunteer forces of the State.

X. On receiving the application and certificate as provided in the foregoing paragraph, the Regimental Commander will furnish transportation for such volunteers to his regimental camp, where they will be examined by the Surgeon, mustered into service, and provided with quarters, subsistence and clothing.

XI. Officers of the several departments connected with the organization of volunteers, will not recognize the right of any person claiming to be engaged in organizing a company, to make a requisition for transportation, quarters, subsistence or clothing, or incur expenses for any purpose whatever, without proper evidence of appointment of such person as herein provided for. Such evidence may be furnished by the production of the original authorization from the Governor, or a copy thereof, properly certified by any Justice of the Peace, Notary Public, or Commissioner of Deeds.

XII. The Adjutants will act as mustering officers for the several regiments, whose duty it will be to muster in volunteers as they are presented, and enter their names on lists designating the persons having authority to enroll them. On the completion of a company, the names will be transferred to a muster roll, one copy of which will be forwarded to the Adjutant-General of the army, at Washington, one to the Adjutant-General of this State, and a third retained by the commanding officer of the company.

THE RESPONSE OF CONNECTICUT.

NEW-HAVEN, Tuesday, July 8.

The largest meeting ever held in New-Haven assembled here this evening to respond to the call for volunteers. Music Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. Commodore Andrew H. Foote presided over the meeting, though still disabled by his wounds and unable to walk. Speeches were made by Senator Dixon, Gov. Buckingham, Rev. Dr. Bacon, Hon. Alvin P. Hyde, Hon. Thomas H. Bond, Rev. Dr. Nadall, Hon. George F. Trumbull, Hon. Chas. Chapman, Capt. Hunt, of the army, and others. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one, and the people are thoroughly aroused. Connecticut will not be behind her sister States in responding to the President's call for troops.

INDIANA AND OHIO.

CINCINNATI, Tuesday, July 8.

Gov. Morton's call for eleven more regiments and six batteries of artillery, although published yesterday morning, was responded to in a most hearty and confident manner, by prominent and influential representatives from over thirty counties. Gov. Morton and Hon. W. P. Thompson addressed a large meeting at Indianapolis last week.

The organization of new regiments in Ohio will commence immediately. Camps are being established in different parts of the State for their reception. Recruiting has materially improved in the last few days. Over eight hundred privates, on furloughs, have reported at Camp Chase, and more are expected every day.

MASSACHUSETTS AND THE CALL.

BOSTON, Tuesday, July 8.

Gov. Andrew and Adjt.-Gen. Schouler have prepared and published the military apportionment of the State, designating the number of men each city and town shall furnish to make up 15,000 men, the proportion Massachusetts is expected to send to the field under the call for 300,000 more volunteers.

THE RESPONSE OF OHIO.

PATRIOTIC PROCLAMATION OF GOV. TOD.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, COLUMBUS, O., July 3, 1862.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: Another appeal to your patriotism has been made by the President of the United States, now assembled at Richmond in hostile array, heavily outnumber any disposable force at the President's command.

The army under Gen. McClellan has been driven back, merely by the force of overwhelming numbers quickly concentrated there.

Additional troops are alone necessary to hold the important positions already gained, and speedily crush the rebellion at all points.

Liberally and gallantly as Ohio has heretofore responded to the calls of the President, he has been assured that we had but to know, that further aid was needed from us to insure a prompt answer to any further calls he might make upon us. This knowledge we now have, and the call has also been made.

And now, citizens of Ohio, one and all, shall the call be responded to? Something whispers me that, with one voice, you say it shall be answered.

Arouse, then, and let every man be able to say that he has done his duty.

There is work for all to do. The aged can strengthen the young; the wealthy contribute to the wants and necessities of the destitute; and the ladies, who have already done so much and whose kind hearts will prompt them in the continuance of their good work, can encourage, by their noble example, both old and young in the performance of the great duty. What is wealth, or even life, worth, if, to preserve either, we have to confess to the world that we are unable to maintain our glorious Government?

Gallant and worthy recruiting officers for the organization of new regiments and the filling up of those already in the field, will be appointed in all portions of the State, and specific instructions given to them.

The enlistments will be for three years, or during the war.

I cannot at this time indicate the number of troops wanted from Ohio, but can safely say that the Government will accept all who may offer within the coming forty days.

Promptness and vigilance are indispensable. Forty thousand recruits within the time indicated would be of more service than twice that number at a later period.

The gallant men of the State may rely upon my best endeavors to discharge the highly responsible duties devolved upon me with an eye single to the preservation of our Government, and with the sincere hope and belief that, when the great struggle of life shall be over, my children can claim for me an honest and faithful performance of my duty.

Invoking the benediction of our Heavenly Father upon our good work,

I am your humble servant,

DAVID TOD, Governor.

RECRUITS FOR THE EIGHTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

We take pleasure in directing attention to the advertisement in our columns this morning, calling for recruits for the Second Regiment, N. Y. S. M., Eighty-second Volunteers, Col. Huston. Having been in the war at Bull Run, Bull's Bluff, Yorktown, West Point and Fair Oaks, this fighting regiment has lost so many men as to induce the Secretary of War to order the appointment of Lieut. J. W. Denver to recruit in New-York. The friends of the old Second Regiment S. V. S. M. will doubtless exert themselves to send an enlistment men to fill up the ranks, and avoid the consolidation which must ensue otherwise. The recruiting office is at their Armory, corner of Hall-place and Seventh-street.

The Legal Government—Letter from Gov. Curtin.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, HARRISBURG, Saturday, July 5, 1862.

To the Editor of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin:

In answer to the inquiry which appears in the Evening Bulletin of this evening, I deem it just to the Governors of Iowa and Delaware to make an explanation as to the memorial presented to the President last week, by the Governors of loyal States, offering additional troops to suppress the rebellion.

At the time the memorial was prepared we could not reach, by telegraph, either Gov. Kirkwood or Buxton, and it was sent to Washington without replies from them. On my return to Harrisburgh, on the morning of the 4th inst., I received a letter from Gov. Buxton, asking that his name be signed to the memorial, and expressing, for the people of Delaware, his cordial approval of the offer, and his willingness to cooperate to any extent in all just measures for the active prosecution of the war for the suppression of the rebellion.

The letter of Gov. Buxton was immediately transmitted to the War Department, and there is no doubt his name has been appended to the memorial, and that the public will be so informed.

Failing to reach Gov. Kirkwood, I united in a dispatch with Gov. Morgan, of New-York, to Messrs. Grimes and Harlan, Senators from Iowa, asking them to call at the War Department, and, if they were willing to assume the responsibility, to sign the name of the Governor to the memorial. I have a letter from them in which they say they called at the Department to sign the name of the Governor, as they knew it would meet his entire approbation, but that the memorial had already been published. There can be no doubt the Governor of Iowa will signify his approbation.

I am, very respectfully, yours, &c.,

A. G. CURTIN.

Why Not Arrange a General Exchange Prisoners?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

When are our prisoners of war to be exchanged? The spell which has paralyzed the authorities at Washington to the postponement of all things until after the great contest at Richmond, has at length been dissolved. Not by the clarion trump of glorious victory! but, alas, by a retreat, which, though we hope may be temporary, brings with it the wail of thousands of hearts bereaved of those dearest and most prized. Throughout the breadth and depth of this once happy land, the electric chord of sympathy in a common sorrow will bind together the people in a Union of States, and a union of hands, to drive back the wily foe and avenge the sacrifice. Doubtless the call of the President for reinforcements will be promptly met, but would it not be well for the authorities to remember, when asking this at the hands of the country, that the parts of this war are not alone those of the battle-field, but, if taken prisoner, those of a fellow's cell; and that while thousands of loyal hearts may be ready to peril life in defence of everything they hold most dear, there is a horror beyond from which nothing can guard them but a definite plan for the general exchange of prisoners of war, instituted at once, so that if captured they may know that they will experience its benefits.

And this, while it would give assurance to those about to enter the lists, how great the relief it would bring to those thousands of sorrowing hearts who mourn the almost living death of those brave ones now languishing in the fetid cells of Southern prisons, and who have deserved better than this of their country.

A little less than a year ago and the first terrors of the struggle entered the hearts of our people. Many buried their beloved, and time, with its gentle touch, may have soothed the pain, in the thought that they were at rest, having met the mate most dear to a brave man—death upon the battle-field in defence of a glorious cause.

But how has it been with those whose daring led them to the front and past the front—who, stripped of everything, have lingered in the prisons of Richmond and Charleston weeks, months, now a year gone by, in vain longing and expectation that the Government for whom all was sacrificed, whose very existence, for the time, was due to the prompt patriotism of these men, who waited for no second call, but sprang to arms at the first echo of the guns fired at Sumter?

From time to time, a few have been paroled to plead the cause of their fellow prisoners, and secure a general exchange. But in vain. Mothers, wives and children, they too must suffer the daily and hourly torture of fearing that those they love will fall victims to the malicious tactics of their barbarous captors at whose mercy they are, hostages for every pirate, bridge-burner or guerrilla. Even now, Capt. Austin, of Kentucky, a brave officer, long in confinement, from the effects of which he has already lost one eye; and Capt. O'Meara, whose name has a National significance second only to Concoran, have been placed in close and solitary confinement at Salisbury, N. C., as hostages for the guerrillas; and the public may rest assured that, as certainly as these criminals meet the fate they merit, just so surely our men will be hung two to one, not of equal rank, but the bravest and the best, that it may strike terror to the hearts of our people, and restrain the hands of our Government.

When will the powers at Washington perceive that so long as these cards are held by the enemy they will play them regardless of consequences? A system of general exchange of prisoners must and will be demanded by the people as a condition of their coming forward at this crisis.
